CHEERS AND HISSES.

How the Educational Bill Was Received in the Commons.

THE PARTIES ALTERNATELY PLEASED AND INDIGNANT OVER THE MEASURE.

Transatlantic Cattle Bill—Religious Census of Ireland—The Russian Jews—Enforcement of the Ukase—Hippolyte's Bloody Work in Hayti—General Foreign News.

LONDON, June 9.—Sir Wm. Hart Dyke unfolded the educational bill amid a chilling silence on the part of the Conservatives and generous cheers from the opposition until he announced that school managers would be allowed to make up the balance by fees, when the Liberals broke out into angry murmurs and the Conservatives into cheers. The speech was rather dull and monotonous except when referring to a passage forecasting mining operations in Hansard, written with a view of convicting the Ministers of inconsistency. A meeting of the National Liberal Federation is called for the 16th inst. to consider the bill, which will meet with considerable criticism from the Liberals. The Standard, in an editorial this morning, says it believes that after the bill has passed the second reading farther debate on the measure will be postponed until the next session of Parliament. The Liberals, the Standard says, will oppose a grant to schools, the present fees of which are under 3 pence weekly on the ground that it will throw them entirely into the control of the clergy. The Radicals will move amendments to almost every clause of the bill.

The Times this morning approved of the simplicity of the Government's education bill, saying that it goes far to satisfy the managers of voluntary schools.

The Daily News calls the bill a "half measure" and a "miserable makeshift which the Liberals will accept as such with the determination to improve it now if they can or to extend it hereafter."

The Daily Telegraph warns the Government that it is hopeless to pass the bill this session and says that it is "better to drop it and devote the money to the reduction of the national debt."

TRANS-ATLANTIC CATTLE BILL.

Mr. Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture, has conceded several points urged by a Liverpool deputation on the Trans-Atlantic cattle bill, and has promised to consider other points. He said he thought it would be of advantage to all parties concerned if some vessels did cease to be engaged in the trade. The Government, he says, intends to place foreign vessels upon exactly the same footing as British vessels. The Government would allow the regulations to lie on the table in the House of Commons for forty days before letting them go into effect. Mr. Chaplin added that he was willing to discuss the regulations with the deputation at a later date.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS OF IRELAND.

The last census of Ireland shows that Roman Catholics number 3,549,745, a decrease of 411,146 during the last decade. The Protestant Episcopals number 600,830, a decrease of 38,744; the Presbyterians 446,687, a decrease of 24,047, and the Methodists 55,235, an increase of 6,396.

WINTER WHEAT IN RUSSIA.

THE YIELD EXPECTED TO BE BELOW THE AVERAGE—PROTECTIVE TARIFF.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 9.—An official report says that the yield of winter wheat is expected to be below the average and that a large deficit in the rye crop is certain. The council of the Empire has approved a new tariff of a strongly protectionist character. It is expected that it will be published in July. The Ministry of Finance is about to establish special agencies in Great Britain, France, Italy and other countries consuming Russian corn to supervise the work of extending grain imports from Russia.

LABOR MEETINGS FORBIDDEN.

The Government has issued a ukase which forbids the holding of meetings at Helsingfor to discuss labor problems.

THE RUSSIAN JEWS.

INCREASING EMIGRATION AT ODESSA—MUST OBSERVE THE UKASE.

LONDON, June 9.—The Daily News correspondent at Odessa says that the Jewish emigration is increasing there. Owing to the uncertainty of the Government's intentions, the financial insecurity is acute, and no banker will discount a bill bearing a Jew's signature. The public credit is so undermined that Finance Minister Vischnegradsky has become alarmed and has promised to ameliorate the condition of the Jews, but the latter place no reliance in his promises.

MUST OBSERVE THE UKASE.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 9.—It is semi-officially stated that the Czar, having learned through Grand Duke Sergius, that Jews expelled from Moscow are brutally treated and are not given time to settle their affairs, has given orders to the authorities to observe the ukase which directs that the expulsion be effected gradually in order to enable the Jews to wind up their business.

A MODERN NERO.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Correspondence from Port-au-Prince, Hayti, under date of June 1, says:

The manner in which President Hippolyte suppressed the recent rebellion brands him as a modern Nero. Two weeks ago Hippolyte, hearing of a rumored revolution in the capital had eighty men arrested and imprisoned, among them the best men on the island. May 28, Thursday, the rebels rose and while Hippolyte was at church released 200 political prisoners. They were armed and headed by an ex-cabinet minister, marched to the church, met the troops and were routed. The leader was captured and shot at once, and then the carnage which has lasted for two weeks begun. Forty rebels were caught that afternoon and shot. Crowds were captured Friday, Saturday and Sunday following and shot in their homes or the public square. Of the 200 political prisoners released by the rebels, few are alive. On the day of the rebellion, May 28, Hippolyte, hearing that Regaud had arms concealed for the Legitime sympathizers, called on him and Regaud insulted him. Taking him to the front door of his home Hippolyte ordered his men to fire and Regaud dropped dead. A cousin of Regaud called on Hippolyte to protest and was ordered killed at once.

BUSINESS SUSPENDED.

Business has been suspended in the Government offices and no one is allowed to leave the city without passports from the Government. Men are caught on all sides, offensive and inoffensive, and shot down like dogs by soldiers who enjoy the work and do it almost without instruction. To-day, June 1, a grand festival of peace is ordered by Hippolyte to celebrate the defeat of the rebels. The people are cowed like caged beasts and no one feels that life is safe. Since May 28, 1,800 people have been killed. The streets ran with blood and the dead are not all buried yet. This reign of terror has no equal in modern times.

GENERAL FOREIGN.

AMNESTY TO THE TICINO REVOLUTIONISTS—A CHAPLAIN'S FATAL FALL.

BERNE, June 9.—The National Council by a vote of 69 to 58 has granted amnesty to all citizens who took part in the revolution in the Canton of Ticino in September last.

A CHAPLAIN'S FATAL FALL.

MUNICH, June 9.—A chaplain ascended the Orsberg near Salzeburg to-day and while gazing enraptured at the scenery, made a false step and fell over the precipice. He was, of course, killed.

PRINCE GUSTAVE.

STOCKHOLM, June 9.—Paince Gustave, Duke of Vermeland, eldest son of King Oscar II. of Sweden and Norway, and heir apparent to the throne, is dangerously ill. The Prince is suffering from influenza.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF.

A stream of lava said to have been caused by the earthquake of Sunday is pouring from the new crater of Mount Vesuvius. It is not considered dangerous.

LABOR NEWS.

Progress of the London 'Bus Strike—Typographical Union.

LONDON, June 9.—There is little change in the situation of the strike here this morning. Very few road cars are running. The companies say that they have received 1,400 application from men who are desirous of filling places made vacant by the strike of the drivers and conductors. The companies, however, have engaged none of these men, their object in declining to employ the applicants being to give the strikers time to reconsider their position and return to work. In order to prevent the horses from suffering through there being very few stablemen to care for them, a number of policemen have been detailed to assist the companies in feeding and in other ways taking care of the horses. At Hornsey 100 of the men employed about the stables have abandoned the strike and gone back to their work.

The position of the strike of the employes of omnibus companies is to all intents and purposes unchanged. The Road Car Co. only started twenty-five of its omnibuses to-day, and the General Omnibus Co.'s vehicles are at a complete standstill. The result naturally is that the "pirate" or scab omnibuses are reaping a harvest of fares. The "pirate" busses, it should be added, are plying with the consent of the Omnibus Employes' Union and in addition several minor omnibus lines have been permitted to start their vehicles, having conceded eight hours of work and other terms asked for by the men. Many of the owners of "pirate" 'busses have sent agents into the provinces in order to bring into the city as many omnibuses as possibl e.

In consequence of the enforced idleness of the London omnibusses the horse-car lines are besieged with people and find themselves unable to carry one-quarter of those desirous of travelling upon the "tram cars." The strikers now show signs of alarm at the great increase of "pirate" 'busses, and are discussing the advisability of limiting the number of these vehicles which the union will allow to ply for passengers with the idea of putting the public to as much inconvenience as possible with the view, the strikers claim, of bringing the public to support the strikers. Strong squads of police are protecting all the omnibus companies' yards, which, as usual in all strikes, are surrounded by crowds of loafers in addition to the picket stationed there by the strikers. The latter keep their temper admirably and appear to be sanguine of ultimate success.

RAILWAY EMPLOYES' CONVENTION.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., June 9.—It is estimated that fully 2,500 strangers are in the city attending the Convention of Railway Employes. The convention is composed of the following orders: Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Order of Railway Conductors, Brotherhood of Telegraphers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association and Brotherhood of Trainmen. At 9 o'clock this morning a secret meeting was held at Princess Rink. The object of the meeting is the discussion of matters of vital importance to the members of the different orders. At 1 o'clock this afternoon a parade consisting of visitors and local orders took place, after which a public meeting was held.

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

BOSTON, Mass., June 9.—The International Typographical Union opened its annual session at Faneuil Hall yesterday. Gov. Russell welcomed the convention and spoke in detail of the important position it held in the labor world. The annual report showed that the receipts during the year were $63,483 and the expenditures $3,800 over the receipts. The balance is still $23,800. President Plank advised submitting the nine-hour question to a vote. The Committee on Laws reported favorably on a resolution giving unions with a strength of over 300 members sole direction of such strikes as in their judgment seems best. A message of sympathy on the death of John A. Macdonald was sent to his widow.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD.

The Cases of the Suspended Ministers to Close To-Morrow.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 9.—The cases of the suspended ministers, on trial before the Reformed Presbyterian Synod, will probably close to-morrow. This morning Rev. W. L. C. Sampson and J. R. Milligan concluded the cases for the suspended ministers. Their arguments did not differ materially from the others. Rev. Milligan said he voted in 1889, but he was not then convinced that the action of the Synod was right. He believed then and now that the position taken was inconsistent with the principles of the church. Rev. Dr. George followed with his argument for the defense. Like his opening address, he spent most of his time in personal explanations in vindication of his conduct. He had not concluded when the Synod took the noon recess. The trials have now been in progress two weeks and most of the delegates are weary. This morning numbers of the delegates slept through the proceedings.

TALMAGE'S POPULARITY.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 9.—The United Presbyterian Ministerial Association discussed yesterday the cause of Rev. Dr. Talmage's popularity and power. Rev. J. C. Boyd read a paper on the subject. The cause of Talmage's popularity and influence was not oratory, he said, for he was no orator, nor dramatic power, for he had none or very little at most. His manner was unnatural, uncouth, awkward, distorted. His sermons were devoid of rhetoric and finish. No, the secret of his power lay in his earnestness and in his orthodoxy. Rev. W. J. Robinson said that Mr. Talmage's success was due in great part to his supreme daring, his remarkable extravagances, his exaggeration of truths, and Rev. Mr. Hood thought it was due to his wonderful knowledge of human nature, while Rev. Mr. Turner said that Mr. Talmage was conceited and like P. T. Barnum he knew how to reach the people and what they wanted.

The Epworth League.

CINCINNATI, O., June 9.—The remarkable growth of the movement in the Methodist Episcopal Church which has taken shape in the form of the Epworth League is shown by the assembling here to-day of the third annual convention of the Fifth Conference District, which includes Ohio and Kentucky. Over eight hundred delegates are in attendance, each delegate representing a chapter. The convention will continue three days.

CUMMING LOST.

A GREAT VICTORY FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES' FRIENDS.

The Jury Out Only Fifteen Minutes—Chief Justice Lord Coleridge's Charge Rather Favorable to the Defense—The Defendants Congratulated—The Baccarat Scandal.

LONDON, June 9.—On this, the seventh and, it was hoped, the last day of the famous baccarat suit, the same very familiar scenes were witnessed outside and inside the court. Possibly there may have been a change in the composition of the crowds drawn to the new law courts in the hope of being present at the end of this sensational trial, but to all general and outward appearances the same people who were around and about the court-room Monday were there again to-day. The Prince of Wales to the disappointment of many was absent. He was at the Ascot races. The proceedings opened with a most sensational incident. The Lord Chief Justice had hardly taken his seat when Gen. Owen Williams stepped to the front of the bench and said, his face pale with emotion and his voice husky with feeling:

Sir William Gordon Cumming.
[Plaintiff in the Libel Suit.]

"My Lord, I have taken your protection. Yesterday Sir Edward Clarke thought proper"—

Here the Solicitor-General, Sir Edward Clarke, sprang to his feet and, interrupting Gen. Williams, exclaimed: "I ask your Lordship to interfere and that Gen. Williams not be allowed to make a statement, as he has not the privilege of doing so."

THE GENERAL HOT.

To this Gen. Williams hotly replied in a ringing voice, all trace of huskiness having disappeared under the influence of the angry feelings which animated him:

"I was accused of an abominable charge—." Here the Lord Chief Justice interfered, saying:

"I do not remember the expression, but I do not think that you can be allowed to speak."

But Gen. Williams persisted in being heard, remarking angrily, "we are accused of sacrificing an innocent man. The statement was made without any evidence being brought forward for its justification."

"I cannot hear any statement from you," immediately commenced his summing up, while Gen. Williams retired, frowning and greatly discontented, to his seat, where he received the condolence of the friends who had come with him to court in order to hear him defend himself from the allegations made yesterday by the Solicitor-General in the latter's summing up for the plaintiff.

Mrs. Arthur Wilson.

CHARGE TO THE JURY.

The Lord Chief Justice at the opening of his speech explained to the jury at length the difference of an action for slander, as this is an action for libel. His Lordship added that if the jury found that the defendants had spoken the truth their verdict should be for the defendants; but if the jury thought broadly that the charges they made were not true, and that Sir William Gordon-Cumming did not do anything wrong in playing baccarat at Tranby Croft in September last, then the verdict must be for the plaintiff. Lord Coleridge then entreated the jury to keep their minds steadily on the evidence and on the evidence only. Continuing, the Lord Chief Justice analyzed at length the evidence given by the plaintiff, which evidence, he said, was well worthy of consideration. The plaintiff, he added, had his counters on a pile of white paper and would have been less likely to be detected if he had, as the others did, put their counters on the cloth of the table. During another portion of his summing up Lord Coleridge said that the Prince of Wales' presence at Tranby Croft was sufficient to explain Mr. Lycett Green's objection to creating a disturbance in the baccarat room or elsewhere by calling attention to the actions which he objected to on the part of Sir William Gordon-Cumming.

DELICATE POINTS.

"Sir Edward Clarke," said Lord Coleridge, had said that the eye saw what the eye expected and, undoubtedly, if persons had their minds set on certain things less proof was sufficient to satisfy them than would be otherwise needed. But the question was as to whether, in this case, the observation referred to would apply."

"Sir Edward Clarke," the Lord Chief Justice continued, "commented upon Mr. Berkley Levetts' exclamation, 'Good God, Sir William Gordon-Cumming caught cheating?' But suppose that the remark had been 'Good heavens, the Archbishop of Nova Scotia, a prelate of the order of the Sun, caught selling a living?' [Laughter.] There would have been nothing unlikely in such an exclamation."

Lord Coleridge also called the attention of the jury to one particular observation which was made on behalf of the plaintiff during the course of the trial. It was to the effect that "there was more in the case than appeared on the surface."

"Against this," the Lord Chief Justice remarked, "I most emphatically protest. The jury has nothing to do with things which are not on the surface. You have to confine yourself to the single issue and what you have heard and what has been proved during the trial."

When Lord Coleridge had proceeded thus far with his charge to the jury the hour of noon had arrived and the Court, as usual, promptly adjourned for lunch. During the discussion which followed the remarks of the Lord Chief Justice, the general opinion arrived at was the charge was against Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming, although nothing decisive had been said either way. Lord Coleridge spoke in a quiet, fatherly, conversational manner to the jury and often in an undertone when it was only possible for the jurymen, and those in the immediate vicinity of the Lord Chief Justice, to hear.

When the Chief Justice defined the law of libel as different from the law of slander and when he gave special instructions in regard to the amount of damages which the jury should—if they so desired—assess, in event they found the case for the plaintiff, it was considered that Lord Coleridge's instructions decidedly favored Sir William Gordon-Cumming. But when the Lord Chief Justice analyzed the evidence of the defendants and that of Gen. Williams, the Prince of Wales and Lord Coventry, it was judged that this was, in effect, an endorsement of their evidence. In this connection Lord Coleridge said that Sir William Gordon-Cumming did not come there to make a fortune and that his character would be sufficiently cleared by the jury awarding him, should the evidence warrant it, a small amount of damages.

A PRIZE GUEST.

Lord Coleridge also described at length the high position and brave career of Sir William Gordon-Cumming, saying that the latter went to Tranby Croft as an honored guest and "if I might be permitted to say so, as a sort of a prize guest, of whom any hostess might be proud."

Referring to the Prince of Wales' connection with the case Lord Coleridge said: "People may say what they like, but they are all very much pleased to have such guests as the Prince of Wales, Lord Coventry and Lord This and Lord That in their house. [Laughter.] Then as to the position of the Prince of Wales and as to the desire for secrecy manifested by the party at Tranby Croft was it not natural that with such monarchical institutions as ours such a wish should have existed? It must be remembered that such incidents were brought before a hard-judging world; not before the loyal and subservient world of the Tudors, but before a world whose sense and judgment had to be consulted. Surely it was not to be said against a man that, under these circumstances, he was anxious to keep the scandal quiet."

After luncheon the Lord Chief Justice resumed his summing up. While admitting the improbability of a man of Sir William Gordon-Cumming's position and wealth lowering himself to cheat and to cheat his friend, the Prince of Wales, too, Lord Coleridge made a strong point against the plaintiff in calling the jury's attention to his failure to face his accusers. Lord Coleridge then said: "We have now come to a very important point, in my mind. I have carefully searched for but have been unable to find any contradiction of the statement that Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming was informed of Mr. Lycett Green's desire to be confronted with him. If I am wrong," added the Lord Chief Justice, turning to Sir Edward Clarke, "I desire to be corrected."

Sir Edward Clarke, for the plaintiff, at once rose to his feet and said that there was no evidence that Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming had been informed of Mr. Lycett Green's desire to be confronted with him, the plaintiff. Thereupon Sir Charles Russell, for the defendant, promptly arose and read from Gen. Williams' testimony that the latter had said in court that he had informed Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming of Mr. Lycett Green's desire to be confronted with him.

Lord Coleridge when both Sir Charles Russell and Sir Edward Clarke had said all they wished to say on the above point dwelt at length upon it, his remarks not being in favor of the plaintiff. The audience, especially the fashionably dressed ladies in the galleries, paid but little attention to the summing up and charge of the Lord Chief Justice. On the other hand Sir Wm. Gordon-Cumming and all the defendants gave their undivided attention to every word uttered by the Lord Chief Justice.

THE VERDICT.

At the conclusion of the Lord Chief Justice's address the jury retired and the occupan's of the court-room busied themselves in commenting upon what they had heard and in conjectures as to the probable affect of the charge upon the jury Only fifteen minutes had elapsed when the jury sent word to the Court that they had agreed upon their verdict. The suspense was great as the jurors returned to their seats and replied to the usual questions. When the verdict of not guilty was announced, there was a tremendous stir, the Court rapping vainly for order. Both applause and hisses were heard, but the former predominated. In a few moments the room was vacated by the gaily dressed throng and the sensational trial was over. The defendants present were warmly congratulated by numerous friends, and seemed supremely happy. The verdict was in accordance with the general expectation. Betting during the morning was strongly in favor of such a result.

While the jury were out Sir William Gordon-Cumming showed no signs of nervousness, and sat quietly reading a letter. His friends, however, plainly betrayed their apprehensions. The defendants were also uneasy and anxious. When the verdict was announced, Sir William was marvelously cool. He was really, to all outward appearances, the most uninterested spectator in the court. Lord Middleton, his relative, who is reputed to have furnished the money for the prosecution, was quite reverse. His face became scarlet and he seemed hardly able to contain his choler. Sir William, with arms folded, looked at the jury as if merely interested in studying their general make up.

THE DEFENDANTS.

Mrs. Wilson and her daughter were quite pale. They seemed too much excited to really realize the meaning of the verdict at first. Then they seemed to notice that in the general hubbub no one seemed to be paying any attention to them, and they departed almost unnoticed amid the throng. The Wilsons, have, in fact, been badly set down by the revelations made during the trial as to their plebeian origin and subservient ambition. Sir William Gordon Cumming coolly donned his overcoat and hat, and strolled away with Lord Middleton. Many pitying and sympathetic glances followed him. The charge of Lord Chief Justice is regarded as unnecessarily severe against the plaintiff. The evidence was sufficiently one-sided, it is quite generally remarked, without his Lordship throwing his personal interpretations into the scale against Sir William. The charge is pronounced by lawyers as practically an instruction to find for the defendants.

Strawberries Scattered.

Strawberries went down last night. About 11:15 o'clock a wagon loaded with the fruit and in charge of John H. Pipkin of St. Louis County, was struck by a Union Depot electric car at Gravois and Oregon avenues, half a hundred crates of berries being scattered over the street. The wagon was damaged to the amount of $10 and the car to the amount of $5.

BARDSLEY IN COURT

The Ex-City Treasurer Arraigned on Seventeen Separate Indictments.

HE PLEADS GUILTY, BUT THE SENTENCE IS POSTPONED.

The Bloody Apaches—Conductors of a Portrait Fraud Plead Guilty—A Banker Robbed of $40,000—The Deacon of a Church Arrested for Tampering With the United States Mail.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 9.—John Bardsley, ex-City Treasurer of Philadelphia, was brought up from Moyamensing prison this morning to plead in the Court of Quarter Session before Judges Fell and Wilson on seventeen separate indictments charging him with loaning money as a public officer, deriving gain from the deposits of public money and converting public money to his own use. When Bardsley was asked how he plead he pleaded guilty to every count of the indictment. District Attorney Graham addressed the court and stated that in view of Bardsley's plea and the fact that his counsel has not had time to examine the bills of indictment, he would not press for sentence being pronounced at once. It was then arranged that this day two weeks should be set for hearing the evidence for and against Bardsley and the Court would render its decision and pronounce sentence. In the seventeen indictments on which Bardsley plead guilty, the total amount of money involved is $678,405.

THE ELLIOTT MURDER TRIAL.

A WITNESS TRYING TO AID THE STATES IN AN IMPORTANT THEORY.

COLUMBUS, O., June 9.—In the Elliott murder trial to-day John W. Burton, a real estate agent, testified to the shooting, which he saw from an up-stairs window. He located the different shots up to the first four, saying W. J. Elliott, the defendant on trial, fired the first shot, the second came from the crowd north of Osborne, the third shot was fired by Osborne, one of the victims of the defendants' guns, and the fourth shot was fired by W. J. Elliott. The defendants' shots were all to the north and northwest. The application of this latter testimony is in favor of the State's theory that W. L. Hughes, the innocent by-stander, was not killed by Osborne. Much time was spent by the defense in endeavoring to bring out that there were no women between the combatants, but the witness said up to the fourth shot there were several ladies within a radius of five feet of W. J. Elliott.

PLEADED GUILTY.

THE PROPRIETORS OF THE PACIFIC PORTRAIT CO. IN COURT.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—J. Fred Harding and F. C. Harrington pleaded guilty in the Federal Court yesterday to using the mail for fraudulent purposes. They founded the Pacific Portrait Co. and had offices in this city. Their scheme was to send circulars in the country offering big inducements to people who would act as their agents. These agents they would induce to order what they called "a free picture," and when it was finished a big bill was sent to the agent, who had to settle. They did a thriving business. Many other portrait companies were indicted for working the same scheme, and a majority of them have consented to plead guilty. Sentence in the cases of Harting and Harrington was reserved.

HE LIGHTENED HIS BURDEN.

DEACON SAMERAL ARRESTED FOR TAMPERING WITH THE MAIL.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Valentine Sameral, deacon and sexton of both the Reformed Church at Guttenberg, N. Y., and the Superintendent of Sunday-school, was arrested yesterday by United States Inspector Camp, and was charged with embezzling the mail. Sameral, when not engaged in his church duties, was supposed to be delivering mail matter in Guttenberg, Weehawken and West Hoboken. This had been his occupation for twenty years, and he was known to nearly every inhabitant of the three towns. As a compensation for this service he received 2 cents for every letter delivered. When he was younger and stronger he did not mind this journey of five or six miles to make a few cents, but as years rolled along and he reached the age of 62 he found the journey wearisome. He began to think that his compensation was too small for so long a journey and he determined to lighten his burden. Accordingly when the mail was light and he had only a few letters and papers to distribute, instead of making a distribution he would hide them in the church of which he was deacon. He loosened the carp et of the platform, and two or three boards beneath it, and from time to time threw letters, papers and magazines under the boards. When he had deposited about 600 magazines and papers, seventy-five domestic letters and nine foreign letters in this receptacle, he transferred his depository to the cellar, where in a secluded nook, he piled up more letters without the slightest regard for expectant sweethearts or anxious heirs who hourly awaited his coming.

One of the many who waited in vain for gentle missives was J. T. Watson of Weehawken. He was certain that his particular correspondent had not forgotten her promises to write much and often, and when he failed to receive any cheering words through old Mr. Sameral, he wrote to the authorities at Washington and asked to have the workings of the Post-office inquired into. Post-office Inspector Camp was delegated to this duty, and after he examined the post-office of which Mrs. Townsend is postmistress he sought Mr. Watson, and from him learned that two female members of the Dutch Reformed Church had on May 28, while cleaning the church, found a pile of mail matter in the cellar. Some of the letters were addressed to the Rev. Mr. Johnson, pastor of the church; others bore the addresses of many prominent citizens in the three towns. The inspector and Mr. Watson made a thorough examination of the church and found the letters beneath the platform from which the Rev. Mr. Johnson preached. Sameral was arrested, and when taken before United States Commissioner Romaine in Jersey City, he pleaded guilty to taking the letters.

THE BLOOD-THIRSTY APACHES.

A BODY OF MEXICAN CAVALRY IN PURSUIT OF THE MURDERERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—A special from Tombstone, Ariz., says that the Apache Indians who attacked Calchum and his party last week in Sonora and killed Calchum, subsequently attacked a camp near by and fired upon the four men comprising the camping party. One of the campers, an Italian peddler, was killed. One of a number of Vacqueros was also killed on Saturday by the Indians. A body of Mexican cavalry are in close pursuit of the murderers.

A BANKER'S LOSS.

ROBBED ON A TRAIN OF A SATCHEL CONTAINING $40,000.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—Ed Thayer, the aged President of the Brandon National Bank of Brandon, Vt., after transacting some business in Omaha, left that place for Chicago on Friday with a small hand satchel containing $40,000 in notes and mortgages. While he was in the dining car en route, the bag disappeared and he has been unable to get any trace of it since.

THE METTMAN MURDER CASE.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 9.—Mrs. Rautzehan was on the witness-stand in the Mettman trial the greater part of yesterday. She said she was not promised anything for testifying against Benson. She went over her career of wrong doing with the defendant and said Benson had the power of charming reptiles and on several occasions had hypnotized herself and her mother. Benson followed Mrs. Rautzehan, and wasvery severe on her. He denied that he had ever made a confession to anybody. The interest in the trial is increasing, and there is a rush every day to get in the court-room.

A POSTMASTER MURDERED.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 9.—Bill Clark, postmaster at Old Jefferson and proprietor of a store at the same place, was assassinated Monday night between 10 and 11 o'clock. From all accounts the killing was a cold blooded cruel affair and has created the greatest excitement at Old Jefferson. The deceased was returning from the residence of a young lady to whom he had been paying attentions and was just about to enter his house when the assassin who was waiting in ambush discharged the contents of a double-barreled shot-gun in his body. No arrests have yet been made.

CAUGHT IN MONTANA.

HELENA, Mont., June 9.—Don Cameron Patterson left this city last night in charge of Sheriff Ayres of Saline County, Mo., where he is wanted on several charges of fraud. Patterson, it is claimed, went to Marshall, Mo., last December, and by representing himself as the agent and engineer of a new railroad corporation, worked several persons with bogus checks. He is also wanted at Joplin, Mo., as well as in several places in Texas. His arrest was effected by Detective Alexander of Marshall, who traveled some $6,000 miles before he rounded up his man.

COOK, THE WISCONSIN BANKER.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—The Sheriff played a neat trick on the friends of Chas. T. Cook, the banker wanted at Wausau, Wis., for illegal banking. Knowing an application for a writ of habeas corpus was to be made to keep Cook out of Wisconsin he drove away in a blinding rain, and though chased by a Deputy Marshal holding a writ of habeas corpus landed Cook in Wisconsin, where he will have to answer the charges.

THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Passage of Bills in the House—The World's Fair.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 9.—The House is working steadily on the passage of bills. The World's Fair bill passed with the item appropriating $750,000; also the bill making the regular annual appropriation for the State Board of Agriculture. The 7 per cent interest bill was ordered to third reading. The Senate is spending a good deal of time over a school bill. The conference committee on the ballot reform bill reached an agreement last night. The Republicans recede from numbering the ballots and the Democrats consent to the preservation of the ballots and to opening the polls at 7 a. m. and close at 5 p. m.

The Senate has refused to concur in the House amendments to the World's Fair bill and have appointed a committee of conference.

Benjamin Franklin, the negro caught playing "Peeping Tom" at the ball park, was arraigned in the Second District Police Court this morning and fined $25 and costs by Judge Morris. John Overstreet, the hostler who caught Franklin during his peculiar action, testified to the actions of the colored man and said that Franklin had made it a practice to go under the grand stand upon various excuses for the past two or three years and that he (witness) saw him the last time Sunday afternoon. Franklin's wife was in court and told how very sickly her husband really was and that he was taking medicine. Franklin is a one-man band, going about from place to pl ace upon request.

LIGHTING'S WORK.

An Officer and Three German Soldiers Killed While Drilling.

THE STRANGE AND FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE TEMPELHOF.

The German Emperor Present at the Time of the Occurence—Belief That the Soldiers' Rifles and Bayonets Attracted the Electricity—Devoured by Hogs—Casualties.

BERLIN, June 9.—Military and other circles here and elsewhere are discussing a strange and fatal accident which occurred at the Tempelhof at 9 o'clock this morning, in the presence of the Emperor. From dispatches received here it seems that a party of grenadiers were being exercised by the Emperor at morning drill on the parade grounds. While the men were being put through their exercises a vivid flash of lightning, followed by a deafening thunder-clap, startled and half blinded the men on parade and hurled a number of them to the ground. When the men who had been struck by the electric fluid had sufficiently recovered their presence of mind they went to the assistance of their stricken comrades and it was found that the officer in command, Capt. Von Quast, and three soldiers were insensible. Two of the latter died almost immediately afterwards and Capt. Von Quast and the other soldier who was struck were dangerously injured. A horse was also killed. It is supposed that the rifle barrels and bayonets of the soldiers attracted the electricity which caused such fatal results.

DEVOURED BY HOGS.

MACOMB, Ill., June 9.—Mrs. Martha Wayland, 80 years old, dropped dead in a field near her home eight miles south of here yesterday, and her body was nearly eaten up by a lot of hogs before the old lady was missed. The hogs acted like wild beasts and had to be driven away with clubs. The old lady was subject to heart disease.

BAD WRECK ON THE M. K. & T.

DENISON, Tex., June 9.—Two freight trains on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road collided yesterday a short distance north of Savannah, Tex., three lives being lost, and thirty cars being burned in the conflagration that followed. Brakeman Harrison was one of the victims, and it is thought that the two others were tramps. The conductor on the northbound train mistook a work train on the side track for the freight that he was to have passed.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 9.—President Egan and other officials of the Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railroad, had a narrow escape from a serious elevator accident at the plant of the Artesian Ice Co. yesterday. The elevator was overloaded and dropped to the bottom.

A HEAVY LOSS.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 9.—A fire broke out last night in Caveson & Caveson's pants factory on Morris avenue, one of the best three-story buildings in the city. It was completely gutted, as was the building next door, and all their contents destroyed. The walls fell in and crushed a small house on one side. The loss is heavy, probably over $50,000.

A DAY'S MISHAPS.

A C., B. & Q. freight train jumped a frog in the yards at Keokuk, Io., just at the end of the Keokuk & Hamilton Railway Bridge, demolishing several freight cars and tearing up the track so as to delay trains on the T., P. & W., the Wabash and C., B. & Q. several hours. The engineer and fireman of a Peoria train, which was standing on the bridge waiting for the train to pass, narrowly escaped death by jumping.

F. H. Gaines, a Paris (Tex.) newspaper man, broke a leg yesterday in trying to get off a railroad trestle before the arrival of an approaching train.

The landslides from the bluffs along which the Missouri Pacific road runs has blocked the tracks in several places, and the trains have been much delayed in consequence. The road will be opened again to-night.

A passenger train ran into a gravel train on the Illinois Central road near Ft. Jefferson, Ky., yesterday, wrecking both engines and five cars. Nobody was seriously injured.

LYING IN STATE.

The Remains of Sir John Macdonald at the Canadian Capital.

OTTAWA, Ontario, June 9.—The body of Sir John Macdonald was brought from Earnscliffe with an escort of Dominion police shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and placed in the Senate chamber. Both Houses of Parliament adjourned late yesterday afternoon until after the funeral of the late Premier. The leaders on both sides joined in eulogy of the dead statesman. At 10 o'clock this morning the doors were opened and the public allowed to enter and look on the features of the dead. A steady stream passed inward and, after passing the casket, made an exit by the two doors behind the throne. The remains will lie in state until to-morrow, when the state funeral will take place. Floral tributes in great numbers are arriving at Earnscliffe. Among them is one from Princess Louise and Lord Lorne—a St. Andrew's cross in white roses and pink carnations, with a violet scroll bearing the words: "Lorne and Louise."

A SERIOUS WRECK.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9.—The Star's St. Joseph, Mo., special says: "A serious wreck occurred on the Burlington & Missouri Railroad directly across the river from the water works pump house, at 12:25 o'clock this morning. Just as the passenger train was passing under the bluff at that point an immense mass of dirt and rock came crashing down the steep bank, striking the locomotive and mail car, knocking them off the track, completely wrecking both. The engineer, Will Waddington, and Fireman James Haddock were both very seriously injured. The engineer received internal injuries and is thought to be fatally hurt. A railroad employe, Duke McManus of Frankfort, Kan., received a fractured arm. The reservoirs of the water-works company, which are directly above the landslide, are in great danger of collapsing.

American Seed Trade Association.

CINCINNATI, O., June 9.—The ninth annual meeting of the American Seed Trade Association began a four-days' session at the Burnet House this afternoon. About 175 delegates are in attendance, representing the largest and most prominent firms engaged in the seed trade of this country and Canada. One of the subjects to be considered at the present meeting is the feasibility of holding an international horticultural congress in connection with the World's Fair at Chicago. To-day's session was taken up in reading reports of the Treasurer and committees, and the election of new members.

FEARS FOUL PLAY.

John Cameron Disappears With $10,000 in Negotiable Paper.

HIS WIFE BELIEVES THAT HARM HAS COME TO HIM.

Monroe Tompkins Obtains Money From Jas. Denohey to Fix a Race and Is Now in Jail—Charles Aschoff, a 17-Year-Old Boy, Charged With Embezzlement—Warrants Against Newsdealers.

Greatly distressed Mrs. Maggie Cameron rushed into the Central District Police Station at the Four Courts this morning and reported to Capt. Young the disappearance of her husband, John Cameron, who has been missing since yesterday afternoon. The Camerons arrived in St. Louis from Scotland only three weeks ago, and have been stopping in apartments at 708 Pine street. About 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the husband put on his hat and left the room, remarking that he was going down town. Mrs. Cameron fears that he has met with foul play, as he had on his person when he left the house drafts and negotiable papers to the amount of £2,000, or almost $10,000 in American money. Cameron is a Scotchman, 47 years old. He stands five feet eight inches in height and weighs about 120 pounds. His complexion is fair, his eyes blue and his hair dark. He wore a full brown beard and dark suit when last seen. He had neither relatives nor friends in St. Louis.

Warrants for Distributing Scandalous Literature.

Warrants for distributing scandalous literature were issued this morning against John B. Oehler and Emanuel Bedaw. Oehler is the confessed general agent of the Kansas City Sun at St. Louis, while Bedaw is the proprietor of a news stand at 516 O'Fallon street. Both were arrested Saturday night by Detectives Kelly and Scully.

It was only after great trouble that Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep was induced to issue the warrants, the official insisting that the law governing the case was not constitutional. Evidence had been secured against many other dealers, but Mr. Estep positively refused to take any action against them. Those for whom warrants were asked to-day are John D. Overton, proprietor of the news stand at the Southern Hotel; Wm. B. Trumbull, news stand, Union Depot; C. Bockelbrink, 17 North Sixth street; George W. Kloenting, 7 South Jefferson avenue; Fred Scherer, Sixth and Olive streets; Wm. S. Schowalter, 1217 Olive street; W. S. Bell, 814 Olive street; Daniel Tischel, news stand, Hurst's Hotel; W. U. Murray, 1802 Olive street. Chief of Police Harrigan announces that as long as the law relating to the sale of this literature is on the statute books he will see that it is enforced so far as the jurisdiction of his department extends.

A Hair-Pulling Match.

There was a hair pulling at the London Theater last night. Miss Nettie Nelson is one of a bevy of more or less attractive attaches who hold down the chairs on the stage in the opening act of the variety and then "ring in" the customers for drinks the rest of the evening. She had a visitor in tow about 1 o'clock this morning and was buying wine with his money when Mrs. May Brown insisted upon sharing in the proceeds. In the fight which ensued Miss Nettie was given a decidedly black eye. She exhibited the discolored optic in the office of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estep at the Four Courts this morning and swore out a warrant charging Mrs. Brown with assault and battery.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Deputy Sheriff McGary went to the residence at 1529 North Seventh street at an early hour this morning and arrested 17-year-old Charles Aschoff, whom he placed in jail on a charge of embezzlement. Aschoff was employed at the International Oil Works, Eighteenth and Poplar streets, and is alleged to have misappropriated $11, which had been entrusted to his care. The representatives of the oil company would have been more lenient in this case on account of the youth of the offender, but insist that a bad example has already been set, several men in their employ having been discharged without criminal prosecution under similar circumstances.

Bribe for a Jockey.

A warrant charging embezzlement by bailee was issued at the Four Courts this morning against Monroe Tompkins. The defendant, a negro tout, was arrested at the race track yesterday afternoon, Detectives McGrath and O'Connell taking him into custody on the complaint of James Donohey. The latter lives at 4365 Garfield avenue and there is something green in his eyes. He was taken in tow by Tompkins at the track yesterday afternoon and was induced by the negro to give up a total of $37 which Tompkins told him was to be used to bribe a jockey in order that he would have a "sure thing" on the next race. The negro was too avaricious, however, and on returning for more money was placed under arrest.

Inquest on Henry Schlueter.

At 11:30 o'clock this morning Deputy Coroner Meade held an inquest in the case of Henry Schlueter, who died at the City Hospital shortly after 6 o'clock last night. The deceased was a painter and fell a distance of thirty feet from a scaffold while at work at the parsonage of the cathedral at 211 Walnut street early in the evening. His skull was fractured, both forearms were broken near the wrist and the bones of the right leg were fractured near the ankle. He was also ruptured internally and died fifteen minutes after being admitted to the hospital. The deceased was a single man, 36 years old and lived at 2228 North Market street. A verdict of death from the effects of shock was returned.

Stabbed His Rival.

About 6:30 o'clock this morning Samuel and Oscar McQuain, both colored, fought on Second street, between Russell avenue and Lesperance street, over the affections of a woman living near by. McQuain used a knife, slashing his opponent across the left shoulder. Morris walked to the Second District Police Station and was sent in the patrol wagon to the City Dispensary. McQuain ran and escaped. He is a very black young negro, of medium height and build and with a rough, unshaved face. Both of the men were employed at the Missouri Car Works, Boston and Kosciusko street.

He Was in Bad Company.

John M. Mulik was arrested by Officers O'Brien and Whalen of the First District last night on suspicion of being the man John Cronin, who shot Officer Laycock of the Fourth District in December last after holding up the conductor of a street car. Mulik denied any connection with this affair, but admitted that he had been with Herman Kuthe on the night of March 22, when Kuthe fired five shots at Officer Pitzer, who attempted to arrest him for disturbing the peace while on Gravois road. A ball from Kuthe's revolver passed through the officer's coat. Kuthe is now serving a year in the Work-house for this offense. Mulik will be held for complicity in the assault.

REAL ESTATE INTERESTS.

A spirit of competition among real estate agents is growing at a pace that promises to produce rare novelties in presenting their line of business to the public. One of those which will be presented in the near future, promises to surpass all previous attemps in this direction.

It is nothing less than an auction at night by electric light with all the usual accessories of a free railway excursion and concomitants ordinarily included in every well-arranged and properly managed picnic.

The plan is truly a novel one. It has somewhat the features of a lawn party on a very much magnified scale. That it will be succesful scarcely admits of a doubt, for who is there who does not like to see and participate in all things new and agreeable?

A mid-summer night auction held in the light of the harvest moon would have advantages which people could not enjoy under the rays of the blazing sun. Such events have taken place, but an auction under electric lights away in the silent woods will be something novel indeed. Held in the cool of the evening after business and professional men and bread-winners generally, have ended the toil of the day, and are anxious to enjoy the refreshing breezes of the suburbs such an event will not fail to draw a big crowd, even if placed in competition with more commonplace attractions to which an admission fee is exacted. The advertising columns indicate the date for this coming event, for which the plans have all been well matured. Farrar & Tate are the originators of the plan, therefore it is not to be wondered at, for that firm has introduced more novel advertising features than all their competitors. The place this auction is to be held is on the old Sutton farm. This is a tract of 206 acres, more recently known as the new stock yards site, which was purchased for that purpose by R. D. Hunter and his associates, for whom it was sold nearly two years ago to an English syndicate by Moses Greenwood, Jr., who represents their interests in the present plan of disposing of the property. The land lies between the Missouri Pacific and the 'Frisco railways just beyond the city limits near to Shrewsbury Park and close to Ellendale, the next station beyond Benton. That portion of the tract to be sold comprises all of it lying between the Des Peres River and the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It is a beautiful body of land. For weeks past contractors have been at work there preparing the site for sale. The land has been subdivided into lots and blocks having an aggregate frontage of 50,000 feet on streets and boulevards laid out parallel and at right angles with the Missouri Pacific Railway. On one of the main, 70-foot wide boulevards, near the track, there is a lot frontage of 3,000 feet, where a granitoid walk is being laid from one end to the other. In addition to this, many of the other streets are being graded and they are also to be handsomely improved. All this work is being done under the instructions of the owners, Messrs. W. C. and A. H. Peel, Spencer Balfour and Lords Dundonal and Sudeley.

Mr. Greenwood says these gentlemen contemplate making another heavy investment in which he has already enjoyed their attention, and it is their intention to close out their interests in the Stock Yards tract, now known as Greenwood, before entering upon the new speculation.

In disposing of the property that enterprising firm of Farrar & Tate propose to take building association stock at its par value in payment for one or any number of lots which a purchaser may want to pay for in such securities.

EASTON AVENUE VALUES.

Easton avenue property keeps advancing on its steady course to fancy prices in defiance of all special real estate attractions, which at times appear to overshadow every other section of the city. It is a great street, with the Mississippi River at one end and the Missouri at the other opposite the city of St. Charles, that western section of the highway through St. Louis County known as the St. Charles rock road traversing beautiful suburban and very rich rural territory.

Business flows to it from all quarters of the city and farmers, gardeners, dairy owners and fruit-growers of the country bring to it the richest product of their land. It matters not how the public mind may be directed for a time, Easton avenue interests keep on growing. New buildings go up all along the line. On no street in the city is the building progress so constant. Improvements are being made all the time. Every new building that goes up adds more to the value of vacant ground. Prices keep on going up until now people who own Easton avenue ground do not appear to know what to ask for it. An example of this was offered at an auction held a week ago last Saturday, when the northwest corner of Easton and Newstead avenues was sold at $84 a front foot. Three years ago $25 a foot would have been considered a fair price for this ground, but the success of the business establishments all along the street has created the new values, and the demand for such locations is even greater than what revised prices would indicate.

SALES OF THE DAY.

The R. C. Greer Real Estate Co. report the sale of the two story seven-room frame dwelling and 30x171 feet of ground at No. 4817 St. Louis avenue, between Marcus and Euclid, for $2,525 from R. C. Greer to George Hennen.

T. S. Noonan & Bro. report the sale of a 25x125-foot lot on the north side of Shenandoah avenue between Ohio and California at $35 a foot from Virginia S. Peugnet to Theodore Kay.

P. G. Gerhart & Co. report the sale of 28x147½ feet of ground on the north side of Bell avenue, 200 feet east of Sarah street, at $75 a front foot, from Thos. S. Gerhard to Chas. Reidisser, who is going to build a ten-room dwelling upon the lot.

C. R. H. Davis & Co. report the sale of the eight-room brick dwelling and 30x150 feet of ground at No. 4529 Richmond place, for $6,000, to Mrs. A. Robb, who will occupy the premises for a residence.

L. W. Stebbins has sold the old Kennett place, consisting of a ten-room frame house and 418x275 feet of ground on the west side of Bompart avenue, between Webster Groves and Tuxedo Park, for $6,500, to W. Krawsnick.

The Sharpshooters.

All the sharpshooters have arrived in the city and this afternoon they are at upper Creve Cœur Lake shooting at the Sharpshooters' Park and Range there. The parade took place this morning and was a very imposing affair. There were probably 1,500 men in line. The parade was to have formed at 9 a. m., but owing to the delay in the delegates arriving it did not start at the contemplated hour. At 10 o'clock three trains containing delegates had not yet arrived and it was determined to move without them. When the Milwaukee delegation, which was one of the late ones, arrived they went direct to their hotel, being too tired to parade. The Chicago and Dubuque shooters were also late, but got in after the procession had started.

TO RILE GANAHL.

Why the Sanitary Company Selected a Site on South Second Street.

THE PLAN OF THE MERZ GARBAGE CROWD TO PAY OLD SCORES.

How the Company's Representatives Secured the Property on Second and Trudeau Streets—The Transfer to Ed. Butler and the Previous History of the Deal—Mr. Ganahl Talks.

The St. Louis Sanitary Co. has decided to locate its reduction plant on Second and Trudeau streets, adjoining the plant of the Pioneer Steam Keg Works. The ground has been secured and the work of getting up the building and machinery will be commenced shortly. The property was purchased some four months ago by James Campbell, the banker and broker, and on Saturday last was transferred to Ed Butler who proposes to lease it to the company.

Underlying these transactions is a story that will scarcely be an amusing one to ex-Councilman John J. Ganahl. Mr. Ganahl fought the Merz Garbage bill hard when it was pending in the Council and it develops that the site of the plant was selected with a view to evening up matters with Mr. Ganahl. He owns considerabe property in the neighborhood of Second and Trudeau streets and the location of the garbage and dead animal crematory in that section will certainly not be to his liking.

PURCHASED BY JAMES CAMPBELL.

When the property was purchased by Mr. Campbell nobody suspected that he had any intention of turning it over to Butler and the others interested in the garbage destruction business. When the transfer was made Saturday, the impression got out that the ground was to be used by the sanitary company. The lot has a frontage of 230 feet on Second street and runs back 280 feet. It is the intention of the company to run a switch up to the works from the Iron Mountain tracks to carry away the fertilizing materials the company expects to realize from the garbage and dead animal carcasses it has contracted to dispose of for the city.

Mr. Butler admitted to-day that the works were to be located at Second and Trudeau streets. He said it was a good location and one of the best that could be found in the city for that purpose.

MR. GANAHL TALKS.

Ex-Councilman Ganahl was seen to-day at his office at Second and Clark avenue, and was surprised when informed that the reduction company was to be established at Second and Trudeau streets. Speaking of the matter, he said: "If the company wanted to punish me for fighting their bill in the Council, they have shot wide of the mark. The nearest property I have to Second and Trudeau streets is the planing mill, and that is a couple of blocks away. Our branch lumber yard on Broadway is three blocks distant. I can say candidly, however, that the plant of the Sanitary company will not be a valuable acquisition to the neighborhood. I don't like it on account of the men employed in our mill. It is bound to have an unhealthful effect, but if nobody else protests I don't suppose we will. There are other factories nearer to it than ours, and if they take steps to prevent it from locating there we may do the same. The property I have is leased and the owners may take some action. So far as my opposition to the bill in the Council is concerned I am still of the same mind. I considered it a scheme to rob the city and I think so still. Nothing has since transpired to convince me that it is anything else but a high-handed game."

STORM REPRESENTED CAMPBELL.

James Campbell said this afternoon that the report that he had bought the property and transferred it to Ed Butler was not true. "The property," he said, "was bought by John F. Storm, a real estate agent, and he transferred it to Butler. By consulting the records you will find that I am not mentioned in the transaction. My relation to the St. Louis Sanitary Co. is that of President."

Though Mr. Campbell is not mentioned, a POST-DISPATCH reporter was positively informed that the property in the first place was bought by Campbell. This would make it appear that Storm bought the property as his representative.

From a person who is familiar with the affairs of the Sanitary Co. it was learned that the company could have bought a suitable piece of property not far from the site it has selected for $2,000 less, but declined to take it on the theory that it was too far from Ganahl's property. The main idea of Butler and others, he said, was to get the ex-Councilman riled.

President Brown of the Pioneer Steam Keg Works said this afternoon that the company would certainly oppose the erection of the reduction plant next to their plant. "When we sold the property," he said, "We had no idea that it would be used for such a purpose and if we did it never would have gone out of our possession."

A settlement has been reached in the controvery between the Denverside Street Railway Co. and the Air Line. Several months ago the Denverside company laid tracks for a street railway from Broadway across the Air Line road at Tenth street and through the Denverside addition to Alta Sita. Before the road was in operation, representatives of the Air Line had the street car tracks on their right of way torn up, thus cutting off a connection across the railroad. The Denverside company has reached an agreement with the Air Line and is now running its cars across the railroad, the street car track having been relaid on the railroad right of way. The Denverside company provides a watchman to prevent collisions on the crossing.

FOUR IN A BOX.

A Runaway Quartette From the West End Disappear Sunday Night.

THEY ARE FOUND TO-DAY IN A PHŒNIX HOTEL ROOM.

A Handsome Italian, a Pretty Flower Maid, a Dashing Milk-Wagon Driver and an Olive Street Schoolgirl—Located by the Police, and the Men Arrested.

A remarkable "quartette" elopement from the West End was rudely nipped in the bud this morning by the arrest of the four elopers, and instead of the usual romantic termination common to such cases will find its ending in the Police Court.

The four principals in what makes a most interesting story were Andrew Foppiano, a son of saloon-keeper Gustavo Foppiano of 3404 Olive street; Miss Ida Merrell, a 16-year-old girl, who worked in Mrs. Heagel's flower store, 3427 Olive street, and also boarded with that lady. "Jack" Howard, sometimes called Jack Steigers because he drove a wagon for the Steigers Dairy Co., and Delia Durwester, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. Peter W. Durwester of 3428 Olive street. Foppiano, the first named was a handsome dark-eyed Italian, and had won the young affection of Miss Merrell, a beautiful brunette, completely. Jack Howard was enamored of Miss Durwester, but it does not appear that she was as thoroughly devoted to him as was Miss Merrell to his "chum."

MEETING OF THE ELOPERS.

But at any rate she formed one of the little party of four who disappeared from sight under the following circumstances: Last Sunday afternoon Foppiano and Howard hired a double-seated rig at Krum's livery stable on Channing avenue and Locust street. Within a suspiciously short time after that transaction, Miss Merrell, bidding her employer and Mrs. Heagal a casual "good-bye," left the little flower store of which she herself was a blooming ornament, and turning on Ware avenue strolled leisurely north to Locust street. There, by a curious coincidence, she met the double-seated rig aforesaid and smilingly took her seat beside the dashing Foppiano. "Foppy," as the young Italian was appropriately called "for short." About the same time also Miss Deerwester had met "Jack" Howard on Grand avenue. What persuasion was used with her is not known, but immediately afterward she rushed home in a tremor of girlish excitement, and begged for permission to "take a drive." The parental consent was given without a thought, and "Jack" Howard and Miss Deerwester hastened to the "rendezvous," where stood the double-seated rig. Later in the afternoon they were seen at Forest Park, and it would appear that their two escorts were "rolling high" in honor of the success of their scheme with the two girls.

HAVING A GOOD TIME.

About 12 o'clock Sunday night, or perhaps in the "wee small hours" of Monday morning, the quartette returned with the rig to Krum's stable. They were then in excellent spirits, and after surrendering the "turnout" they left the stable on foot. They were thought to have gone south on Channing avenue to Laclede, but practically their appearance at the stable was the last seen of them until to-day. Their disappearance naturally caused a sensation in the neighborhood, where all four were well known, and but little else was talked of last night but the "four-handed runaway."

Miss Merrell, it seems, had no one to grow particularly anxious over her absence, as she was only an employe of Mrs. Heagel's, and Mr. Heagel, after philosophically observing that he "wouldn't have the door open for any hired girl," locked it with pretty Ida outside in a world of cruel temptation. But the parents of Delia Deerwester were panic stricken by their daughter's flight, the mother being completely overcome with grief and apprehension. The father's feelings were those of rage, and he spent yesterday in threatening all sorts of vengeance on the man who had taken Delia away from home. He went to the Four Courts and had a long talk with Chief Harrigan, enlisting his sympathy and aid in the matter, but last night came and passed with no tidings of the poor fugitive.

A WARRANT ISSUED.

This morning the parents of Miss Deerwesser appeared at the Four Courts evidently determined to do all in their power to hasten the finding of their daughter. A warrant was sworn out against the two men, charging them with having enticed the girl, Delia Deerwesser, away from her home, and this was at once placed in the hands of Sergt. Johnson of the Fifth District and Sergt. Gregory of the Central with instructions to scour the city in their search for the four elopers. The two officers did so in a systematic and thorough manner, and their search was successful.

THE QUARTETTE FOUND.

This afternoon they located all four in a room at the "Hotel Phœnix," corner of Thirteenth and Pine streets, and swooped down upon them instanter. The quartette was badly scared by the two officers' sudden appearance upon this "double-couple" tete-a-tete, the two girls especially being frightened almost out of their wits by such a termination of their foolish flight. Foppiano and Howard were promptly placed under arrest and the parents of Miss Deerwesser were notified that their daughter had been found. The Deerwessers will prosecute the two festive young men on the serious charge of having enticed a girl under age away from her home. As to what will be done regarding Ida Merrell's case, nothing is yet known. Her father is said to be dead, and her mother reported to be a seamstress or housekeeper on Chouteau avenue, near Twenty-seventh street, but her exact address is not known. It is probable that, owing to the circumstances in which they were found, the two men will not meet with much mercy from the parents of Miss Deerwesser, who are resolved to punish them as severely as the law will allow.

Norfolk, Neb., Workmen Object to Them and Other "Aliens."

A CONTRACT MADE BY SUPT. BACKUS OF GENOA GIVEN UP.

The Action Not Approved by the Indian Commissioner—Increasing the Issue of Pension Certificates—No Duty on Cars in Transit—News From the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—Superintendent Backus of the Genoa (Neb.) Industrial Training School for Indians, has reported to the Indian Bureau that sometime ago he arranged with the Oxnard Beet Sugar Co. of Norfolk, Neb., to give employment to a number of the Indian boys of the school in pulling weeds from their beet fields. The boys were to receive the same wages as white help. Since making this arrangement, however, Mr. Backus has learned that on June 1 a meeting of laboring men was held at Norfolk, at which resolutions were passed protesting against the employment of Indians "or any other alien labor," as contemplated. Since learning this action Mr. Backus has decided to keep the boys at school, and asked the Commissioner to approve his action. The Commissioner, however, disapproved of his action in surrendering his agreement, and expressed his surprise at it. The Commissioner, in speaking of the matter to-day, said it was the policy of the Government to make the Indians self-supporting as soon as possible, and when an opportunity offered whereby the Indian boys could earn something for themselves, he thought the opportunity should be made the most of. The Commissioner was greatly amused at the statement that Indians were "aliens."

DEPARTMENT MATTERS.

INCREASING THE ISSUE OF PENSION CERTIFICATES—DEPRECIATED PAPER CURRENCY.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—Commissioner Raum of the Pension Bureau is making arrangements to still further increase the issue of pension certificates and hopes to be able to reach a daily issue of from 1,800 to 1,900, which would be an increase of about 100. During Gen. Raum's incumbency the number of cases awaiting investigation by special examiners in the field has been reduced from 14,000 to 2,200 and in consequence about forty special examiners now in the field will be called in. There are now about seventeen vacancies in the Bureau which will soon be filled, and these appointments, together with the forty special examiners, will increase the working force of the office to fifty-seven. Gen. Raum said to-day that his present force was doing exceedingly good work and he expected to make a better record this year than ever before. The number of certificates issued last week was 5,067, the first payment on which aggregated $594,859.

DEPRECIATED PAPER CURRENCY.

The Secretary of the Treasury has requested the Secretary of State to advise consular officers in those countries having a depreciated paper currency to affix to invoices made out in such currency as well as in standard coin currency, their certificate of depreciation of such paper currency as compared with the standard coin currency of such country proclaimed quarterly by the Secretary of the Treasury.

NOT SUBJECT TO DUTY.

Assistant-Secretary Spaulding has decided that railway cars running in the transit trade between Canada and the United States are not regarded as importations subject to duty, and that cars built in the United States, exported and returned for permanent use in this country, are also exempt from duty, if they have not been advanced in value or improved in condition while abroad and if satisfactory evidence of their domestic origin and exportation, without allowance of drawback, is produced on reimportation.

MISS COUZINS' PROTEST.

Ex-Secretary of the Woman's World's Fair Committee Miss Phœbe Couzins has sent an emphatic protest to the Treasury Department against paying Messrs. Rand & McNally, printers, for printing proceedings of the committee during Miss Phœbe's incumbency as Secretary, as the work as approved by her was changed entirely, and that, consequently, they are not entitled to be paid. Assistant Secretary Nettleton will investigate.

RULES FOR SELECTION OF LANDS.

Acting Secretary Chandler approved a circular letter to the Registers and Receivers prepared by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, prescribing rules and regulations for making selections of land in the States of Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Washington, under the grants made to these States under the enabling act of Feb. 22, 1889. In addition to the grant to each of these States of the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections there is also granted to each for various educational purposes 500,000 acres and 82,000 acres for the erection of public buildings at the several State capitals. The act of March 2, 1881, granting lands for penitentiary purposes to South Dakota is extended and made applicable to Montana, North Dakota and Washington. There is also granted 120,000 acres to South Dakota for agricultural purposes and to each of the other States 90,000 acres for the same purpose.

RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE IN MISSOURI.

The railway mail service in Northeastern Missouri, it seems, is not up to the standard it ought to be. The superintendent of the system says that the number of clerks is not sufficient, and that he hopes by July 1 to have a much larger force, and in consequence the service in that section will be up to the rest of the service.

CAPITAL NOTES.

The Court of Claims has decided a number of important cases and adjourned until Oct. 24. An award of $26,000 was made in the case of Alfred Pasque against the Government for use of a certain patent in the construction of cofferdams on Western rivers. Jacob Clark received judgment for $44,990 for unpaid work on a dike in the Ohio River near Rockport, Ind.

There was deposited in the Treasury to-day to the credit of "conscience" the sum of $12,000, received through Riggs & Co. from an unknown resident of New York, who signed himself "Relieved."

MONTICELLO SEMINARY.

The Fifty-Third Annual Commencement Exercises—Graduates and Visitors.

GODFREY, Ill., June 9.—The rain and clouds of the past few days passed away, and the weather was delightful for the large crowds that attended the fifty-third commencement exercises of Monticello Seminary. The morning trains brought in crowds of visitors. On the 9:30 train from St. Louis came a large delegation accompanied by Maddern's Military Band of St. Louis. Twelve young ladies were graduated, as follows:

No essays were read, but the graduating class was ably represented by Miss Hangan of Chicago, who gave the greeting "Salve;" by Miss Watson of Alton, who gave the farewell "Vale," and by Miss Worthington of Pittsfield, who read the class poem. The address to the graduating class was made by Rev. Dr. J. H. Barrows of Chicago. His subject was "The Perils of Young Womanhood." Prof. Clarence Eddy of Chicago presided at the organ; Rev. George Nye Boardman of Chicago, President of the Board of Trustees, conferred the diplomas on the several members of the graduating class, having preceded the ceremony by an eloquent address. The Etata Case.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The fact that arms are reported to have been found secreted aboard the Etata is considered as unimportant by the State Department and the production of the arms in court would practically amount to nothing. The fact that the Etata took arms aboard at sea might be of importance at the trial as evidence tending to show that the boat was violating the neutrality laws, but oral evidence on this point would be quite as effective as the production of the arms in court.

KERLEY ATTACKED.

THE DOCTOR MAKES A REPLY TO CHARGES BROUGHT AGAINST HIM.

The Story About His Having Been Run Out of the State of Illinois Asserted to Be Without Foundation—His Indorsements for the Superintendency of the Female Hospital.

A bitter and also very underhand fight is being made on Dr. R. M. Kerley, the Mayor's nominee for Superintendent of the Female Hospital. Dr. Kerley's nomination is still held in committee because of the deadlock over the Holman and Lindsay ends of the fight.

During last week Messrs. Arnstein, James, Sloan, Cole and Flesh of the Council received letters addressed to them personally. The letters were as follows:

LETTER SENT TO COUNCILMEN.

DEAR SIR—Pardon me for addressing you, but I consider it my duty to do so in reference to Dr. Richard M. Kerley. I hope that you will post yourself in regard to his reputation in the past as a physician. He was chased out from Illinois for misconduct in his profession, came to St. Louis, and has committed * * *

WM. J. DOUGHERTY.

The Councilmen informed Dr. Kerley of these letters and he then learned that several others making the same damaging statements had been sent anonymously.

DR. KERLEY'S REPLY.

Dr. Kerley was seen this morning by a POST-DISPATCH reporter and made a plain and pointed explanation. He produced first an indorsement of himself for any medical position under the city government signed by men immediately recognized as leading members of the local medical profession. Dr. Kerley then said, "You see that indorsement. It was not for the Mayor and is not a political indorsement. It is professional. I have a special endorsement from the Secretary of the State Board of Health for the Female Hospital. Now for that Illinois story. These are the facts: I went to Peoria and opened an office. My practice was small because I was a stranger and was looked upon as an interloper. A man came to me and said that he was not a physician and proposed to send me patients if I would give him a percentage. I took him up, my office was crowded with patients, and then my enemies there made complaint to the State Board of Illinois and I was cited to appear in Chicago and show cause why my license should not be revoked for unprofessional conduct. I did not go, finding it to my interest to come back to St. Louis, and my certificate was revoked by default. So much for that. When the Secretary of the Illinois State Board heard that I was a candidate for a prominent position here, he wrote to the Secretary of the Missouri Board and stated that he would immediately proceed to have me reinstated in Illinois.

"I have been re-elected to the Medical Society here and even my political enemies voted for me. The last letters and others are the work of those I do not know and who dare not face me in this matter. I am struggling to regain what I have lost through unfortunate investments in Mexico and my enemies are trying to down me; that is all. I will submit my record as a physician at any time to any one. The Councilmen have paid but slight attention to those letters as the writer has not been located as yet."

To-Day's Election.

The voting on the charter amendment to-day brought out but a very light vote and created no flurry whatever. The polls as far as could be learned up to noon had all been opened at the hour of 6 a. m. and everything was in order.

Gen. Stevenson, the Comptroller, said this morning that as far as he had observed all was going well and in favor of the amendment. At the office of the Recorder of Voters everything was moving along quietly and rumors and reports were to the effect that the vote was light and favorable to the amendment. The polls will be open until 7 o'clock.

GEN. JOHN M'NEIL'S DEATH.

Nearly 80 Years Old and Resident of St. Louis Since 1836.

A few minutes before he died he spoke to his assistant, Mr. Miller, about affairs of the office, and the latter left the office, and went out to give some orders. Returning in a few minutes he went to speak to Gen. McNeil, and discovered that he was dead. He had evidently passed away without a struggle and without pain, as his face was calm and undisturbed.

The cause of Gen. McNeil's death is supposed to have been heart disease, aggravated by over-exertion. He was actively engaged during the past two weeks in Memorial Day work, and it is thought he did too much for an old man nearly 80 years of age.

The body was removed to his home, at No. 2727 Russell avenue, where the General had lived with his wife and her sister in comfortable circumstances.

John McNeil was born at Halifax, Nova Scotia, Feb. 4, 1813, and when but a boy he went to Boston and served an apprenticeship in the hat business. In 1836 he came to St. Louis, and for many years afterwards he was prominently connected in mercantile business here. In May, 1861, he joined a volunteer regiment under Frank P. Blair, and was elected Colonel. During the war he served through Missouri and rendered efficient service. At the close of the war he was given the title of Major-General. For a number of years he served as Customs Inspector, and two years ago ran for City Auditor, but was defeated by ex-Mayor Brown.

He was appointed to the position he held at his death by Maj. Harlow.

He was married in New York in 1834 to Miss Martha Freeman, and two daughters survive him, namely, Mrs. Wilfred Patterson of Germantown, Pa., and Mrs. W. P. Atwell, wife of the United States Consul in France.

The Frank P. Blair Post of the Grand Army of the Republic will have charge of the funeral, which is to be held next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, No. 2727 Russell avenue. An invitation was sent this afternoon to each of the other nine Grand Army posts in the city to attend the funeral in a body and to appoint one of their number as pall-bearer. The march will be from the residence on Russell avenue to Grand avenue and then north to Easton avenue, where the Grand Army procession will be disbanded.

Gen. McNeil is to be buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Saida Ellen Siegler was granted a divorce by Judge Klein to-day from William Siegler and the custody of her two children, Sandy and Ida. The Sieglers are from St. Louis County, where Siegler owns real estate. Mrs. Siegler is nearly blind and charges her husband with abusing her. She left him and returned to her parents, who live in West St. Louis. A habeas corpus proceeding was heard before Judge Withrow at the time Mrs. Siegler left her husband, he trying to get possession of the children. Judge Withrow awarded them to the mother.

Michalin Oflanska obtained a divorce to-day in Judge Withrow's court from Laurence Oflanska on the ground of indignities and abuse.

Martha Berry was divorced from Samuel Berry in the same court on a charge of desertion. They were married in Lexington, Ky., in 1873, and lived together until 1885.

The Brewery Fight.

An infringement suit by the American Brewing Co. against the St. Louis Brewing Association came up for hearing before Judge Withrow at 2 p. m. to-day. Lubke & Muench represent the American company, which is suing the English syndicate company because of the similarity of canvas signs placed in front of saloons by the St. Louis Brewing Association to those used by the American company. A feature is that in both signs the word American is made prominent.

Judge Dillon's Decisions.

Judge Dillon rendered a number of decisions this morning as follows:

Christ Dorn against James Degnan; finding for plaintiff in his cause of action and his damages assessed at $90.89; finding for defendant on his counter claim and his damages assessed at $95.82, and judgment in favor of defendant for $4.99.

Motions for new trial and an arrest of judgment are overruled in the following cases: Snider against Crawford, Connecticut Life Insurance Co. against Smith, State to the use of Ziegenhein, Collector, against Horatio N. Spencer and others; H. Duffy against Bruggeman, decree in favor of defendant.

St. Luke's Training School.

A petition for a decree of incorporation was presented to the Circuit Court to-day by St. Luke's Training School for Nurses. The association is organized for the purpose of training young women as nurses of the sick, the school to be under the auspices of and in connection with St. Luke's Hospital. It will be in charge of a board composed of the President and Superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital and five members appointed by the Directors of St. Luke's Hospital.

Two Wills.

Paul Stehlin, in his will admitted to probate to-day, leaves $1 to each of his children —Rosa, wife of Joseph Singner; Catherine Stehlin, John Stehlin, Jacob Stehlin, Agatha Stehlin, Louise Stehlin and Joseph Stehlin. The rest of the estate goes to Victoria Stehlin, wife of testator, who is appointed executrix without bond.

William Richmond's will was probated to-day. He leaves all his property to his wife absolutely.

Judgment Against Glover.

A judgment for $1,400.28 was rendered in Judge Klein's Court to-day against John M. Glover in favor of the Mermod-Jaccard Jewelry Co.

Adjourned for the Summer.

The Court of Appeals met this morning for the last time previous to the regular summer adjournment. The memorial on the death of the late Judge Breckenridge, passed at a recent meeting of the St. Louis bar, was presented by Mr. Smith P. Galt and spread on the minutes of the court. The court then adjourned for the summer.

New Suits.

Louisa Svoboda filed a suit for divorce to-day against Frank Svoboda on the grounds of drunkenness, indignities and abuse. He called her vile names in the presence of her children and strangers, she alleges, and on various occasions struck her and threatened her life. She also states that on several occasions he "indecently pursued plaintiff's minor children, compelling them to flee from their home."

Sergeant Walter S. Gregory filed an attachment suit to-day against John M. Crane, the amount sworn to being $1,158.40.

Carolina Neuhaus filed a suit to-day confessing judgment for $1,163 in favor of Attorney Henry Boemler to satisfy a claim for legal services.

Court Notes.

In Judge Klein's court to-day the suit brought by the guardian of George Sperflage to divide the property now in his hands among George's heirs and to correct errors made in the settlement of the estate of Mary Sperflage, deceased, was referred by the court to F. A. Wislizenus as referee.

Judge Valliant's court is engaged to-day hearing a case growing out of exceptions to reports of commissioners on the opening of a portion of King's highway.

Letters of administration were granted to-day in the Probate Court, on the estate of John W. Kock, valued at $1,560, to Amelia Koch, and to James F. Brady on the estate of Simon Clark, valued at $600.

A DISEASE OF THE BRAIN.

Judge Phillips Decides That a Sunstroke Is Not an Accident.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9.—Judge Phillips of the United States Circuit Court decided an interesting point in a suit on an accident insurance policy. Willoughby L. Dozier, who died about one year from the effects of a sunstroke, was at the time carrying an accident policy. The suit brought on the policy by the beneficiary was decided by Judge Phillips yesterday. He sustained the demurrer of the defendant, on the ground that a sunstroke is not an accident, but a disease of the brain arising from natural and known causes.

"KNOW-HOW, DON'T YOU KNOW?"

The Know-how is the most important factor in Interior Decoration, and not as the old tailor thought, that he could always furnish the best suit of clothes because he had the richest cloths. Materials, choice designs, good stock, etc., etc., are good as far as they go, but how to adapt, to arrange, to assimilate, to finish—herein lies the success of our art and the open sesame to successful decoration.

We claim to have the Know-how, and can refer by permission to the decorations in many of our city residences.

State Firemen's Association Meeting—Insurance Men's License Increased.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 9.—The State Firemen's Association held its annual session yesterday and in the absence of President Lindsay, Vice-President Thomas presided. The most important business was a resolution introduced by Assistant Chief Barry of the St. Louis department, which was adopted. It provides for the pensioning of widows and children of deceased firemen. A committee was appointed to urge the scheme before the next Legislature in order that it might come before the people of the State in the form of a constitutional amendment. President Lindsay was re-elected and Chief Evans of the Salvage Corps of St. Louis one of the Vice-Presidents. The next session will be held in August, 1892. Joplin was decorated beautifully in honor of the visitors. A contest between pompier companies of St. Louis and Kansas City will take place to-night.

THE Council should bear in mind, if occasion should arise, that a Kicker should always be well booted.

WALES and his gambling clique have succeeded in throwing GORDON-CUMMING, but they had to fall with him to do it.

THERE is no occasion for wonder at the Mayor's absence from his office. He has doubtless merely "gone out to see a friend."

THE Prince of Wales is undoubtedly anxious to affirm that he would consider it "more agreeable not to meet Sir EDWARD CLARKE in future."

A FINE museum of political freaks will open in St. Louis on Saturday next, that is to say the Executive Committee of the third party will meet here.

ANTHONY had his CLEOPATRA, PARNELL his KITTY O'SHEA, and if Wales had profited by their example he would have had no Lady BROOKE in his train.

IF President HIPPOLYTE should serve up the bodies of the victims of his tyranny at a banquet the resemblance between Hayti and Central Africa would be complete.

A SNAKE has been found on the roof of a San Francisco house, and the people are wondering how it got there. Perhaps somebody had thrown one of the Mayor's old boots at a cat on the roof.

WANT ads received after 10 o'clock Saturday night for the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH must be placed under the head of "too late for classification." Our patrons will please bear this in mind and get their ads in early to secure best results.

THE United States may await the outcome of the crisis in the Canadian Government caused by the death of Sir JOHN MACDONALD with complacency. It would be practically impossible for the Tories to find a Premier more unfriendly to our interests as opposed to those of Great Britain than Sir JOHN, so that the chances incident to a change are all in our favor.

RUSSIAN advices make it appear that it is not only as political master that the Czar is persecuting certain of his subjects, but as the head of the orthodox Russian church. He seems to be charged with burning zeal for his church and determined to bring every inhabitant of Russia within its fold by force if persuasion fails. With religious fanaticism joined to political intolerance the condition of the Russians is worse than was imagined by the outside world.

PHILADELPHIANS will reap nothing but disaster and humiliation from the harvest of crime which is now at its height in their city, unless it arouses them to a realization of the necessity of crushing their corrupt political rings. The uncovering of monstrous villiany in official and financial circles will be made well worth the cost if it leads citizens to insist upon thorough reform, and the cleansing of the public service of unscrupulous bosses and their rascally tools.

WITH Republican machine tools in office at Harrisburg, Republican machine tools in office at Washington, and the United States District Attorney's law firm employed as counsel, the bank and treasury looters at Philadelphia had things so secure that they did not require help from WANAMAKER. They would have used him or robbed him either with cheerful alacrity. That he lost nothing by the collapse of the bank with which his dealings were so large seems to be the only ground for suspecting him of being privy to their looting operations.

A QUESTION OF HONOR.

The principal burden of the criticism of the Prince of Wales for his connection with the Cumming case has been based upon the revelation that he is an habitual gambler who carries "chips" around in his pockets when he visits his friends and plays in their houses despite their objections to gambling.

These sins are bad enough in an heir apparent to the throne, but several incidents in the case are worse reflections upon him because they involve dishonorable conduct.

It is the Prince who is responsible for the publicity of the scandal at Tranby Croft and hence for the libel suit. When Sir WILLIAM and Lady BROOKE had their quarrel she taunted him with the charge of having cheated at cards, and being pressed for the name of her informant admitted that it was the Prince. He was thus proved to have violated his pledge and broken a compact of secrecy formed for his sake, in order to whisper a bit of scandalous gossip into the ear of his female favorite.

Again, Sir EDWARD CLARKE, counsel for GORDON-CUMMING, intimated in open court that the Prince attended the trial daily for the purpose of restraining him from doing his whole duty to his client by a frank discussion of the Prince's conduct. If this be true, and certainly no other reasonable cause can be found for the Prince's subjecting himself to the embarrassment consequent upon his attendance at the trial, it is a most discreditable act on his part.

These and other minor features of the case indelibly stain the honor of the Prince, who is proved to be lacking in the essential qualities of a gentleman. He is even placed in a more contemptible position than Sir WILLIAM, who has had the disgrace of cheating placed upon him by the verdict of the jury, in that while Sir WILLIAM in a measure permitted himself to be sacrificed for the sake of the Prince, the latter, after accepting the sacrifice, aided in using it for the ruin of his friend.

WANAMAKER ON THE STAND.

Postmaster-General WANAMAKER makes a fairly straight story of his connection with some very crooked transactions. There are hazy points in it where his overdrafts and his possession and surrender of Keystone stock are involved, but there is no one living who can deny his statements about the private verbal understanding between him and President LUCAS with reference to the purchase of Reading stock. The wicked partner in that transaction is dead, and the books of the looted bank show how very wicked he was while enjoying Mr. WANAMAKER'S intimate friendship and confidence.

In explaining why there was difficulty in inducing him to surrender the questionable Keystone stock when he admits that he makes no claim against the bank or the Lucas estate, Mr. WANAMAKER might have been a trifle clearer. But such minor matters will not mar the general satisfaction with which the country will read his positive denial of any connection with BARDSLEY'S operations, or of having exerted any influence in securing the remarkable delays in the closing of the bank and the appointment of a receiver.

That was doubtless the work of Mr. WANAMAKER'S wicked partners in politics who operate the Republican party machine in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania. Their nets were around State officers, and other department officers at Washington besides the Postmaster-General, as appears from the fact brought out by the investigation that United States District Attorney READ'S law firm was employed as counsel for the rotten bank under the administration of the fugitive MARSH.

WHILE the eyes of the whole country are upon the startling proofs of the fact that the political machine which has long ruled Philadelphia and Pennsylvania was a looting machine, another scene at the capital of the same State presents an equally shocking companion picture. In the latter we see the man who a few months ago received the votes of the Pennsylvania Republicans for Governor, now a dishonored and friendless bankrupt, pleading for a change of venue, on the ground that he cannot get justice at his own home from a jury of his neighbors. Senator QUAY afraid to sue for slander when distinctly and responsibly accused of crime; DELAMATER not daring to face a jury of his neighbors when indicted as a robber; the City Treasurer of Philadelphia in prison with two of her bank cashiers and one of her bank presidents; others prominent in business and politics fleeing from justice, and the representative of the State in HARRISON'S cabinet apparently mixed up with all this rottenness—what a spectacle the Republican party presents in the State that has so long dictated the party platforms and named the party candidates!

GEN. ALGER says that he is confident that the strongest men will be selected by the next Republican National Convention as candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency. Gen. ALGER is believed to harbor a sly idea that he can always put his finger upon one of them.

THE apparent complicity of the Federal Bank Examiner in suppressing the announcement of the insolvency of the Keystone Bank in Philadelphia calls for a rigid investigation of the Washington end of the disgraceful affair. The Mayor of Philadelphia has requested the co-operation of the President in ferreting out the facts, and the President cannot honorably refuse it. The whole truth must be brought out no matter whose head is laid low.

Infant Offices Fostered.

From the Boston Globe.

The Reed-McKinley Congress, which appropriated in two years a billion or so of the people's money, was nothing if "not protective." It stood by the cradle where infant industries were conjured into existence by the Napoleonic wand of the man from Ohio. But it extended its fostering care to realities as well as figments of the campaign imagination. It nursed infant offices as well as infant industries. Think of it! In its lease of power this Fifty-first Congress added no less that 1,695 to the already long list of places of emolument under the United States Government. No wonder that the surplus which Cleveland left in the country's treasury vanished. The actual yearly increase of expenditures incurred by this wholesale creation of new offices reached the sum of $5,198,148. These figures tell their own story of extravagant outlay. But the Reed-McKinley legislators were at any rate consistent. Infant offices and infant industries must be "raised" together. And it is the people who must pay the protective piper, now as always.

What Made Blaine Sick.

Washington Correspondence Philadelphia Record.

Everybody knows now that Blaine forced the provision for reciprocity into the McKinley bill after Harrison, Reed, McKinley and all the other Republican leaders had exhausted their powers in trying to prevent it. But everybody does not know that Blaine is entitled to almost as much credit for aiding to defeat the force bill of 1890 as he received for aiding to defeat the force bill of 1874. It was the extraordinary and exasperating labors involved in these extra departmental efforts to defeat his party's plans within his own party, which are really responsible for Blaine's present need of rest. He was fully equal to the ordinary duties of his office, and would have been none the worse for performing them, but his single-handed contest with the President, the Cabinet, the Speaker, the Ways and Means Committee, the Finance Committee and the rest of the Republican managers—extending over the spring and summer, from February to October last year—was enough of itself to have given a much younger and stronger man pause.

"Burglar-Proof" Vaults.

From the Philadelphia Telegraph.

The wayfarer in the vicinity of the old-fashioned hard-money establishment of the United States in this city is apt to do considerable hard thinking just now. As he looks across the way he reads the sign: "Keystone National Bank. Safes to rent in Burglar-Proof Vaults." The emphasis he is is apt to place on the last three words, and he will ponder them deeply as he goes on his way. If he glances upward he perceives that the name of the building, in enduring stone, perpetuates the story of a crime. A Philadelphia bank President recently was proudly showing a friend through the new "burglar-proof vaults" erected by his institution with great care and regardless of cost. It was observed by the visitor that these heavy stone walls and ironclad outside guards ought to keep out marauders. "Yes," remarked the bank official, with suggestive impressiveness, "there is no doubt of that, but the trouble is that the burglars of to-day are on the inside."

A Princely Gambler.

From the New York WORLD.

The Prince of Wales is supposed to be not only a gentleman, but the social chief of British aristocratic life, the exemplar and maker of manners. He will presently become the head of the nation and also of the church—both the Episcopal establishment of England and the Presbyterian establishment of Scotland. He is born to represent law and religion in his own person. Nevertheless, when he is a guest in a country house he opens "a quiet game" of baccarat as any other gambler might do. He becomes the baccarat banker, as he might become the faro banker, and with him men and women play for stakes so high that the value of single counters is fixed at £10, or $50. No magistrate thinks of arresting him for doing what an ordinary gambler would be sent to prison for doing.

What Parnell Might Have Done.

From the New York Times.

The marriage of Parnell to the woman his connection with whom has put him out of British and Irish politics is probably now of no political consequence. If he had effaced himself, when the scandal arose, by abdicating the Irish leadership, instead of waiting to be sent to political Coventry by Mr. Gladstone and beaten in his struggle for the control of the Irish party, the case would be very different. In that event, a marriage now would be generally regarded as the utmost he could do to atone for his offense, and if he had remained quiet in the meantime he might perhaps have resumed his old place as the Irish leader without any general or effective remonstrance. Such a result his course has rendered impossible.

Where the Minority Rule.

From the Boston Herald.

Gov. Ladd of Rhode Island is the second Governor in New England who goes into office with a minority of the voters of his State behind him. This doesn't take into account Connecticut, where the Governor wasn't voted for at all. And yet New England is the most enlightened section of the country.

A Partial Explanation.

From the Pitsburg Post.

In five Maine counties where the population is nearly all "native American," the Maine Bible Society has found 10,418 families who confess that they never go to church and 982 families who do not own a Bible. This partially explains why Reed and Boutelle go to Congress.

"BERTIE, MY SON!"

Berthold Rosebrough Meets His Mother After Nineteen Years' Separation.

AN AFFECTING REUNION AT THE UNION DEPOT THIS MORNING.

The Mother, Overcome With Excitement, Faints in Her Son's Arms—Her Great Joy at Beholding Him Once Again—Mutual Recognition—The Dramatic Ending of a Strange Romance.

An affecting meeting of mother and son, after a separation since the latter's babyhood days, occurred at the Union Depot this morning just after the arrival of Little Rock Express No. 56. It was the climax in the romantic career of Thomas or Charles Berthold Rosebrough, the story of whose life was related in last Sunday's POST-DISPATCH.

The beginning of the story dates back to the death of the father of the young man, Thomas B. Rosebrough, in 1872, when the mother allowed the son to become a member of the family of James W. Rosebrough, 3802 Windsor place, who is a member of the firm of Rosebrough Bros., marble men, Twentieth and Olive streets. In this family the baby grew to boyhood, and then to manhood, all the time remaining in ignorance of his mother's name or her whereabouts. He made efforts to ascertain something of his relatives on his mother's side, but they were unavailing, letters written to different parts of the country remaining unanswered. Finally he became engaged in business with his uncle, John A. Foster, the contractor, and time passed on without one word being received from his mother. May 4 last was his 21st birthday, but still he received no information from the source from which he had a right to expect it. After it was delayed for nearly three weeks with no accounting, he received a letter addressed to Charles B. Rosebrough. It advised him that his mother still lived and that she was coming to St. Louis to see him. She carried out her promise in arriving this morning.

NEW AND STRANGE DEVELOPMENTS.

It now develops that the mother's parents have been living in St. Louis all the time and have kept the parent advised on the welfare of the son, without his knowledge that they were even alive. Although they knew his whereabouts all the time they did not betray their identity to him for fear of unpleasantness, and also because it was likely under the circumstances that he did not want to see them. But when they read the article in the POST-DISPATCH, Mrs. Maston Gore, residing at 1914 North Thirteenth street, wrote her grandson a note, which he received last evening, and made him aware for the first time that his mother had any relatives in this city.

Last night Mr. Rosebrough, for the first time within his remembrance, paid his grand-parents a visit at their home. It was a strange meeting, and demonstrates what strange things can happen in a city like St. Louis. He had been living all his life within such a short distance of them, but never knew of their whereabouts, or as stated, that they were even alive. For the first time since his babyhood days the grand-parents, who said that during all these years they had been compelled to exercise great self-control in not advising their grandson of their whereabouts, were free to reveal their identity to him. It was discovered through the natural conversation which would be indulged in upon such an occasion, that Mr. Rosebrough is a nephew by marriage of Dr. Hugh E. Thompson, 2314 South Fourteenth street.

It seems very strange that the young man should have lived in such close proximity to his mother's parents and sister, and at different times meet people who knew their relation to him, and yet never be enlightened. It is altogether probable that those who knew thought that the young man was also aware of the whereabouts of his relatives and did not therefore deem it necessary to tell him. But he knew nothing, owing to the fact that he was so extremely young when his father died and he was parted from his mother that he did not remember their friends or acquaintances.

FRIENDS AT THE DEPOT.

Although the exact date set for his mother's arrival was not published, at the especial request of Mr. Rosebrough, there were, nevertheless, several old friends of his mother, as well as her parents, present to welcome her back to St. Louis. The young man, as may be imagined, was very nervous, under the circumstances. Finally the Little Rock express, with the usual clanging of bells and escaping of steam, came slowly rolling into the depot. It was a moment of the greatest anxiety to young Rosebrough, who wondered if it could be possible that his mother was not on board. Crowds of people came streaming off the train and the watchful eye of the young man took in the appearance of each woman as she alighted.

MUTUAL RECOGNITION.

What a strange thing is intuition! Mr. Rosebrough had never, since 2 years old, seen his mother, yet the moment a heavily veiled lady stepped upon the platform he knew her, not only from the description received as to how she would appear, but also by a strange devination that cannot be explained.

"Mother!"

"Bertie, my son!"

They were clasped in each other's embrace and loving kisses were exchanged. The long separation was at an end, and the trouble and sorrow of the past were forgotten in the joy of the moment.

THE MOTHER FAINTS IN THE DEPOT.

Leaning heavily upon her son's arm, the mother walked to the ladies' waiting-room of the depot.

"My son," she softly murmured, again and again, looking lovingly into his face.

Her mother came upon the scene, and it was noticeable that Mrs. Rosebrough was compelled to make an effort to steady herself before greeting relatives and friends. This done, her strength seemed to fail, and she staggered slightly, as though overcome with emotion.

"Take me to a seat, I am——" but she did not finish the sentence addressed to the son.

Mr. Rosebrough, seeing that his mother was near fainting, led her to a seat and gently allowed her to sink thereon. Unconsciousness, brought on by the meeting, lasted but a few moments. Words of love and confidence were exchanged, the outsiders discreetly withdrawing and allowing the mother and son to be alone.

For some minutes they sat thus, the mother's hand on the shoulder of the son, looking lovingly into his eyes, the great crowd surging on all unmindful of the dramatic incident that was occurring right in their midst. The people sitting on the seats near at hand saw nothing strange—it was only an ordinary depot meeting in their imagination. The pathos of the occasion escaped all those who did not understand the case. A hasty glance was all that some gave to the scene, while others passed on without even noticing.

PROUD OF HER SON.

As soon as the nervousness of the first greeting had passed, a POST-DISPATCH representative, being one of the party, was introduced to the mother and was favored with a short interview.

"It is impossible," she began, looking proudly at her son, "for me to express my thankfulness or delight in again meeting my son, whom I left a baby and now find a young man, broad-shouldered, manly and handsome. Only mothers who have had like trials can tell or appreciate what I have suffered during these long nineteen years of separation. I thought that in leaving my son with his St. Louis relatives, that I was doing the best for him that lay in my power. Not being able to properly educate him, I yielded to the advice of my friends after my husband's death, and allowed him to become a member of the household of his guardian, Mr. James W. Rosebrough, but I refused to allow of his adoption, thinking that some time I could claim him as my son. Circumstances prevented that, and after the passage of so many years I concluded that the better plan was to wait until he became of age, when I would make myself known. This I have done, and it is impossible for me to express my happiness in finding that he loves me despite our long separation. It is an occasion which I have planned in my mind thousands of times, but which I sometimes feared would not come to pass. But now I am thoroughly happy."

Mr. Rosebrough, his mother, grandmother and friends soon afterward took a cab and were driven to the Gore residence on North Thirteenth street, where a family reunion of a most peculiar kind is being held this afternoon. Mr. Rosebrough has received numbers of invitations to call on old friends with his mother, since the publication of the fact that she was coming to St. Louis.

MAKE ONE SUCCESS.

The Students' Contest an Opportunity for Ambitious Young Authors.

Many of those who have succeeded in later life began by succeeding in youth and this is particularly true of authors who have demonstrated in boyhood and girlhood a natural good understanding of the English language, capable of improvement by systematic education. The valedictorians of the schools and colleges have the satisfaction of knowing that they too have shown superiority over their competitors in the power of composition and that this victory is a pledge of success to the future. But the satisfaction this will bring will be enhanced greatly to the successful competitors in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH contests. There the winners only will contend and the one who wins from them may boast a double victory.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Assignment of the Son of Bonnet, the Baltimore Suicide.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 9.—The alleged shortage in the accounts of the late Jacob Bonnett, Secretary of the Rothschild Building Associations Nos. 19 and 20, caused Ernest M. Bonnett, a son of the deceased, to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Jacob Bonnett and his son formerly conducted the boot and shoe business under the firm name of Jacob Bonnett & Son. The assignment, it is said, is a precautionary measure, as some of the elder Bonnett notes have been discovered bearing the indorsement of the firm. The creditors of the building associations besieged the offices of the receivers in order to ascertain the prospects of obtaining their money. They were given but little hope. The receivers estimate that the liabilities of the associations will aggregate $100,000. The assets are about $6,000 or $8,000 in mortgages, and what may be realized from Jacob Bonnett's estate.

OMIT FLOWERS.

THE INCIDENT AT ST. MALACHY'S CAUSING MUCH COMMENT.

Less Worldly Pomp and More Solemnity Desired at Burial Ceremonies—Business Sense Before Poetry—Views of Fathers Ziegler, Walsh and Powers on the Tributes to the Dead.

Members of the Roman Catholic Church in this city are in a doubtful state of mind regarding flowers at funerals, since the action of Father Ziegler of St. Malachy's Parish in forbidding them in the church of which he is pastor. The question has never come up before, and now that it has considerable discussion is being had over it. Some want to know that if the rules and regulations of the church forbid flowers or floral tributes at funerals, why the rule has been allowed to remain unobserved, or if there is a rule to that effect when and where did it originate. It has come to pass that a funeral among certain classes is not considered complete unless there are flowers, and the popularity of the deceased when alive is gauged somewhat by the number and costliness of the floral tributes.

FATHER ZIEGLER'S STAND.

The incident, which has aroused the curiosity of Catholics to learn what is the rule of the church, occurred last week. A funeral took place from St. Malachy's Church, and the coffin, when removed from the hearse, was hidden with wreaths and pillows of the choicest flowers. Father Ziegler requested that these be left at the door of the church, as they were out of place in the church during the services over the dead. He looked upon them—as he said afterward—as gewgaws, flimsy things of the world, calculated to prevent the minds of the mourners realizing the solemnity of the occasion—the presence of death. Flowers, he argued, are mindful of festivity from custom the world over, while black was emblematic of sorrow and mourning. He did not look upon them in a poetic light but merely as they are universally viewed by the people.

This rule of Father Ziegler has left many in a quandary as to the proper course when burying the dead. To learn if the rule would be made general in the Catholic Churches of this city several prominent priests were seen and asked the question.

FATHER WALSH GIVES HIS OPINION.

Rev. Father Walsh, pastor of St. Bridget's Church, on Jefferson avenue, the largest parish in the city, said:

"I see no objection to a moderate and decorous use of flowers at funerals. I say a moderate display. I think they mitigate the sorrow of the friends of the deceased and are the symbol of immortality. That is the reason I think why graves are decorated in cemeteries and why in the more general sense we have lasting monuments to perpetuate the memory of our departed friends. In any case I think that it is the business of the Archbishop to forbid any usage that may exist among Catholics in the diocese, as without uniformity in all of the churches there is sure to be disorder and dissatisfaction."

FATHER POWERS.

Father Powers, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church at Jefferson avenue and Locust street, viewed both sides of the question.

"There is no rubric forbidding the use of flowers at funerals in the Catholic Church," he said. "A rubric is a law or rule regulating ceremonies in the church. There is no rule in any church, that I am aware of, which forbids the use of flowers. They are generally looked upon as tokens of affection and esteem from sorrowing friends and it is the only means they have of manifesting their affection. It is an old and acknowledged custom. Deprive them of this means and they will have no other except that of expressing condolences to the bereaved relatives. At times, however, it seems as though there should be a rule prohibiting a lavish display in glorifying a dead relative or friend. I have seen families not able to pay funeral expenses at the church go to great expense, in buying flowers. The custom as it is now calls for tributes from friends of the deceased and it often wokrs a hardship on many. Now that is not right, and I see the more enlightened and intelligent classes are recognizing this as I frequently read in the death notices of prominent people, the request 'no flowers.' As long as it is the custom to decorate the bier of the dead with the flowers, just so long will certain classes go to extremes at funerals and I say then that it would be better to have a rule forbidding the use of flowers at a church funeral. My advice from a worldly standpoint to those who ask is please omit flowers."

CORNER STONE LAYING.

How the Children of Mrs. Lachmund's School Will Close the Year.

The pupils of Mrs. F. Lachmund's school to-morrow will close their year's work with a very pretty ceremony. Mrs. Lachmund is erecting a new school building and when it has reached the proper stage the corner stone will be laid with proper ceremonies. The preliminary arrangements will be made to-morrow morning by sealing up the box which will go under the corner of the building. As the school term ends to-morrow and many of her children will be off for the summer before the building is ready the box will be prepared in advance. Along with the specimens of American coin, a Bible and a copy of the POST-DISPATCH will be a collection of essays, one by each pupil in the school. The topics were chosen by the children themselves and they were permitted to write them as they pleased. It makes a very original and interesting collection. The essays will be read by their authors and then deposited in the box with the date and the name of the child written upon them. The box will then be sealed up and put in a safe place until the time arrives for it to go in the corner-stone.

Among the pupils who will take part to-morrow are: Wallace McHenry, Genevieve Dillon, Paula Bremmerman, Else Meyer, Clara Narden, Euna and Mona Pattee, Josie Donk and Ella Weinrich.

Retail Grocers' Association Meeting.

The third meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association was held at Central Turner Hall last night, about one hundred retail grocers attending. There are over one thousand retail grocers in the city. A plan for dividing the city into quarters and appointing a committee of fifty to canvass the city for members was discussed. Market street and Jefferson avenue were mentioned for dividing lines. The Committee on Legislation, composed of A. Moll, D. Geisbold and A. C. Grenner, presented an ordinance requiring push-cart and one-horse-wagon peddlers to pay a license of $50 a year and $75 a year to be charged for two-horse-wagon peddlers.

John Grieves, his father, is now in the Fulton Insane Asylum. Grieves came here with his brothers from Cuba, Crawford County, a few months ago, and all secured work.

KILLED A BAD MAN.

A Prominent Citizen of Springfield, Mo., Taken to Tennessee.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—In the matter of the arrest of J. M. Greer, living near this city, some interesting facts have been developed. Sheriff Day received a warrant from Gov. Francis issued on a requisition from Gov. Buchanan of Tennessee, in which it was stated that Greer was a fugitive from justice, having been indicted in Tennessee on a charge of murder, alleged to have been committed eighteen years ago. The arrest caused a great sensation on account of Mr. Greer's large acquaintance and prominence in this community.

GREER'S STATEMENT.

"Some time in the latter part of October, 1873, Mr. William Henry killed a man at Fulton, Ky. They had a fight the previous night and the next morning he slipped up behind and knocked him in the head with a pick, killing him instantly. The Sheriff attempted to arrest him, but was wounded and Henry escaped, going to his uncle's in Dixon County, after lying in the woods several days. Then he went to his father's, in Cheaton County, Tenn., where he secured a double-barrel shotgun and hid in the woods. He finally ventured out and went to a shooting match on Nov. 8, 1873. That night he and I slept together at the house of my cousin, J. S. Greer, fifteen miles west of Nashville. Before we arose from bed the next morning he asked me this question: 'If you and I were to kill a man what would become of us?' I replied: 'If we were not justified we would have to suffer the consequences.' He said he and a man named Harris had had a difficulty a year or so previous to 1873, and if he could get to kill Harris he (Henry) would be willing to die. The row between me and Henry came up about noon Nov. 9, 1873. Four or five neighbors were in the house, when the horn blew for dinner at the home of Mrs Bledsoe, on the Greer farm. My cousin, J. S. Greer, remarked: 'Let's go to dinner.' Henry spoke up and said, 'Let's have a row first.' Henry turned at me and said I told a lie. I and J. P. Greer immediately left the room. As we were going out of the yard, he ran in between me and the gate and jerked me back. He repeated that I had told 'a — lie,' and he was going to 'beat h—l out of me.' I asked him what it was. He said, 'It didn't make any difference.' He commenced drawing his coat.

THE KILLING.

"Frank Hannah ran up and tried to stop him. I drew my knife and told him to stand back, that I did not want to hurt him. He says: '— you, you can't bluff me.' He ran onto and hit me three times, when I stabbed him in the left side, and he died in an hour or two."

Mr. Greer married Miss Helen, a daughter of the late Junius M. Rountree, about thirteen years ago, has borne an excellent reputation, and his friends confidently believe he will come back clear of the serious charge. He visited that section last October and remained nearly three weeks, during which time he had a long conversation with Frank Russell, Sheriff of Williamson County, who was familiar with the facts, and no attempt was made to arrest Mr. Greer, who thought he ought to stand trial while the witnesses were living, and have the thing settled. The Sheriff advised Mr. Greer to return home to his family, which he did and has been quietly attending to his farm work ever since. Sheriff Bussell said that Mr. Greer's trial would never amount to anything unless a one-horse detective wanted to make a fee, which seems to be the case.

SCHUETZENBUND MARKSMANSHIP.

Why There Are Few Crack Shots in the Organization.

This morning August G. Schoenfelt of Cincinnati, who is in the city for the purpose of attending the schuetenfest, said: There are not many people outside of the Schuetzenbund who understand exactly how it is organized and the manner in which the competitions are conducted. I have frequently heard it remarked that while the Germans pay a great deal of attention to rifle practice, more than any other nationality in the United States, that the crack shots among them are very few, and that they have seldom held any place in American rifle teams. This is an undoubted fact, but it is by no means as derogatory to German marksmanship as is apparent on the first statement. The Schuetzenbund neither produces great individual marksmen, nor does it send out small teams of crack shots, but this is not due to inability to do so, but to the principles which govern the organization. Strange as it may seem, in a society which gives more prizes than any in the country with which I am acquainted, we discourage inferiorities and strive to attain a high order of mediocrity. For this reason, very few prizes for long range shooting are given, most of the shooting being done at from 200 to 600 yards, what is known as military distances. Where there is one good shoot at 800 and 1,000 yards, there are at least twenty at shorter distances, and we fear that if we raised the standard too high that the competitions would fall into the hands of a few experts and that the great mass of members would fail to maintain their interest. This is the main reason why the Schuetzenbund has no teams that can compete at marksman's distances with those of the crack rifle clubs. Then the essentially military nature of the German people must be taken into consideration. From the cradle we have been taught to consider the soldier's profession one of the noblest in the world, and as riflemen we aim to become military shots and not exhibition marksmen. In practice 1,000 yards is far too great a distance for anything like accurate marksmanship, and there is little real advantage in a soldier shooting well at that range. As soon as we find that a certain style of shooting is not beneficial in a military point of view, we abandon it, although all are aware that the chances of this country being engaged in a serious conflict on land are so infinitesimal as to be scarcely worth reckoning. The same reason prevents us from practising the circus shooting, such as indulged in by Buffalo Bill, Dr. Carver and others. In long-distance range firing and in rapid work at very short range, we yield the palm. What we do claim is that no shooting club can send out so many men who can shoot well at military ranges, or who would be so effective in the line of battle. Our men are not discouraged by the hopelessness of competition with a few phenomenal shots. All shoot regularly and the result is an even lot of marksmen such as exists nowhere else in the country."

A PROOF OF GROWTH.

This morning D. G. Hamilton, President of the Chicago syndicate that purchased the Walsh roads and the Broadway line, arrived in the city and registered at the Southern. Mr. Hamilton said that no one who had watched the amount of travel on the different street-car lines of the city could for one instant doubt that the growth of the city has been remarkable within the past two or three years. As evidenced by the street railway traffic, the population is increasing very largely indeed, as all lines show a great addition to the number of passengers carried.

Injured by a Horse.

A horse which John Murphy was feeding in the stable in the rear of his residence at 2219 Hickory street shortly after noon yesterday, became frightened and struck Murphy down with his forefeet, trampling him while on the floor and cutting three gashes on his head and one on his shoulder. Murphy is not dangerously hurt.

FEATURES OF TO-MORROW'S PROGRAMME AND YESTERDAY'S RACES.

An Australian Horse's Victory—Running On Other Tracks—Old Time Base Ball Players in the California League—Griffin Matched to Fight an Unknown at New Orleans.

To-morrow's programme will have for its principal attraction the Southern Hotel Stakes, for 2-year-old colts and geldings, half a mile. This stake closed with sixty-three entries, among them being Faraday, Boston De, Barney S., Silverman, Gold Stone, Tahoe, Hitower, Barnard, Frank Kinney, Knickerbocker and Davezac. Several of those named are almost certain to start, while there are a number of others likely to go to the post. This stake will be the third race on the programme. There are four other set events, but one of them may have to be split and six races run during the day, as has been the case every day so far, including to-day. The first race to-morrow will be one mile for maiden 3-year-olds and upwards. A selling race at one mile and one-sixteenth will be the second event. The fourth race will also be a selling purse, one mile and fifty yards, while the closing event is the Carriage Builders' Handicap, sweepstake purse for 3-year olds and upwards, one mile and one-eighth.

Local betters are not making their fortunes at the races. The horses who have won have in several instances been such strong favorites, that the odds were prohibitive, and forced the betters to look elsewhere for a horse to carry their money. This was true of the first three races on Saturday's programme, betters having to put up $10 to stand to win $1 on Michael in the Derby. It was also true of the fourth race yesterday, the talent being asked to put up from $5 to $10 to win $1 on Virge D'Or, and in many books no bet would be taken against the horse. Paramatta was also quite short, 1 to 2 and 3 to 5 being the best obtainable odds. Where horses who were not favorites have won they carried little of the public's money. Dora in the last race Saturday was probably backed for more money than any other horse, but he was backed almost entirely by his stable, while the public's money was poured in on Boston De. Up to the present the bookmakers have certainly had by far the best of the game, and stories of local betters who have made "killings" are not heard to any great extent on the track.

* * *

Never before has the St. Louis track been in such condition as it was yesterday. Saturday's track seemed about as bad as it was possible for a track to be, but yesterday the track was even worse. It seemed to be bottomless, so thoroughly soaked with water had it become. Under the circumstances the time was bound to be slow. Four out of six favorites won. In the Debutante Stakes Mr. Ferguson made the worst start he has so far given. It was not an extremely bad one at that, but might have been better. He had a large and trying field of giddy youngsters to handle, and finally got them all—and there were a dozen—off pretty well, except two, Invercauld and Gracie M. These two did not get started until just as the drum was tapped, and they were several lengths behind the others, who were all in good motion. Like Clavey, the pair were not in it, of course, from the start, as the distance was only a half-mile and the track was so heavy that it was impossible to make up much lost ground. Vancluse, who was sent off in the lead, was never headed, although Adalia run him to a neck. Minnie L. made a splendid finish on the outside and got third place, with the others straggling. The California crack filly, Yo Tambien, was scratched as it was expected she would be and Greenwich, who won the 2-year-old filly event on Saturday, was made a favorite, but was never in the race. The time was :55½.

* * *

Wild Cherry, a cast off of Dan Honig now owned by the Twin City stable, was played strong as a good thing in the opening race, a selling purse of one mile and 100 yards, but Bonnie beat her easily by eight lengths, Lida L, losing the place to the favorite by a head. The time was 2:01¼. The Twin City stable lost heavily on the race as they played their mare strong. Venango, Cinch, Voltine and Dan L. also ran.

* * *

Kehama opened favorite in the second race for 3-year-olds, one mile, but before they went to the post Rorka became the favorite. Both carried considerable money. The latter won by two lengths, Kehama beating George K. five lengths for place. The time was 1:57. Maud B. and Cæsar also started.

* * *

The fourth race, one mile and a quarter, was a walk-over for Virge d'Or, against whom no betting could be obtained. Interest centered in the contest for place, and Capt. Shaw's son of Frogtown, The Bishop, secured it by ten lengths from Charley Maffitt's chestnut gelding Progress. The Bishop, under a whip, gained several lengths on the last half-mile, but the race was never in doubt, as Virge d'Or was running under a pull all the time and won by two lengths. The Bishop, however, beat the others badly, and ran a very good race, coming on twice after he had apparently quit. Knoxville and Sight Draft were away back of Progress. The time was 2:27¾. Virge D'Or, who is owned by William Mulkey of Kansas City, made his first reputation by winning the Derby at that place last year, and following it by a win at St. Paul. This year he has been a very consistent performer, the most consistent of any Western horse, Kingman excepted.

* * *

Robespierre, who was a good colt last season in his 3-year-old form, particularly early in the season, when he won a couple of stakes, has degenerated into a mere skate. He was heavily backed yesterday in the fifth race to beat Paramatta, the favorite. Robespierre remained in front until the stretch was reached, when Paramatta came with a rush and won easily by two lengths, all the race having been taken out of the son of Jils Johnson, who was unable to make the slightest spurt at the finish. Robespierre beat Robin Hood five lengths for the place. Mary Sue was the only other starter. The mile and one-eighth was run in 2:08½. Paramatta, the winner, is an imported horse, having been bred in Australia, and it is from the great river of that faraway land that he derives his name. He was brought here with his sire, the Australian stallion Cheviot, who was imported by Dr. Reed of California and afterward sold to Mr. Charles Reed of Gallatin, Tenn. Cheviot's get have been very successful in the few races they have run in this country, and at the recent sale of Senator Hearst's stable the Cheviot youngsters brought big prices. Johnny Campbell secured a couple of them at long odds and the very next day after the sale one of them won himself out by landing a big stake for his new owner. Cheviot is a brother to the imported Australian stallion Sir Medrod, who sired the great Tournament.

* * *

Billy Morgan landed another race yesterday, the sixth event, one mile and one-hundred yards, being won by Royal Garter in 2:08½. He was a slight favorite over Comedy, who earned considerable money, but the aged son of Quartermaster quit like a dog and finished last in the field of four. Frank Lilly, a long shot, secured the place from Argenta by over a length, Royal Garter winning it by over two lengths.

RACING ELSEWHERE.

NEW YORK, June 9.—The J. A. & A. H. Morris stable, which has captured so many of the big stakes this season for 2-year-olds and 3-year-olds, met with a set-back on Mr. Morris' own track yesterday. In the Van Nest stakes for 2-year-olds the Morris colt, Mars, was the favorite and was heavily backed by the stable, but failed to get a place, Airplant, Michael Dwyer's colt, landing the prize. Russell was an odds on favorite in the Fleetwood stakes for 3-year-olds, but Walcott & Campbell's Pessara beat him out by a neck. The Morris outfit and their followers lost a fortune on the race, while the Walcott & Campbell crowd won one.

First race, free welter handicap sweepstakes, six furlongs—Foxford won by a head from Longstreet, who beat Chesapeake three lengths for the place. Time, 1:13.

Second race, a sweepstake, one mile and a furlong—Judge Morrow won by two lengths, while Cassius beat Hypatia the same distance for the place. Time, 1:58½.

Third race, Van Nest Stakes for 3-year-olds, of $50 each, with $2,500 added, six furlongs—Airplant won handily by two lengths from Guilty, who came fast at the finish and beat Disappointment a head for the place. Time, 1:01.

It was won by J. Lowther's 5-year-old horse, Houndsditch, Sir R. Jardine's 4-year-old colt Plato, second, and J. B. Burton's 5-year-old horse Barmecide, third.

BASE BALL.

The California State League seems to be a home of rest for cast off professional players from the National League and American Association. They flock to the coast in brigades and hardly ever come East again. Oakland has Mike Hines in the outfield. Mike is a brother of Paul. Washington's center fielder and was raised in the vicinity of Boston. He started out in the Massachuetts State League and then was captured by the Boston National League team, from there he went to Kansas City and after trying for several years to keep up with company too fast for him, he drifted out to the coast. Big Bill Hardie, another League cast-off, is doing back stop work for the same club. The Sacrementos have Billy Sunday guarding right field for them. Sunday, it will be remembered, was the fleetest runner in the profession. He guarded right field for the Chicagos for several years, and then went to Pittsburg. Sunday was of a religious turn, and was a Sunday-school Superintendent at Pittsburg. Jimmy Peoples of the old Cincinnati and Brooklyn teams is also with the same club, covering bag No. 3. Peoples was Terry's regular backstop while a member of the Bridegrooms. The San Jose aggregation has Cal McVey in center field. Cal was a base ball player when the game was in its infancy. He was first baseman of the old Boston team which was captained by George Wright and he was a first baseman par excellence. He was also a splendid batsman and was one of the Big Four—White, Spalding, Barnes and McVey—who jumped from the Boston Club to Chicago. McVey, though, will hardly be remembered by the present generation of ball cranks. The San Francisco Club has Charles Sweeny, the once great pitcher of the old Providence champions. Sweeny was considered one of the greatest twirlers that ever stepped in the box. He was for a number of years a member of the old Black Diamonds of this city, but his arm gave out and he is now in the field. Cartwright, who was on the Browns last season is covering bag No. 1 for the Frisco team and old Joe Sommers of the old Cincinnati and Baltimore Association teams is in the outfield. The Vallejos are also made up of old timers. Milt Whitehead of the old St. Louis Unions is still covering third base for them, Sam Smith of this city and for some time first basemen of the Louisville team, is in the same position for them and Sprague, formerly of the Chicago and Cleveland League Clubs, is one of their crack twirlers.

BASE BALL BRIEFS.

The last game of the present Boston-St. Louis series and the last that will be played here until June 28, when the Cincinnatis return here, is that which takes place at Sportsman's Park this afternoon.

Rain prevented the game that was to have been played yesterday between St. Louis and Boston.

Spalding's Official National League Base Ball Guide is out, and is perhaps the most complete book on the game that has ever been issued. It contains National League, Players' League, National Association and Western Association records. Mr. Spalding has also sent to this paper a very handsome morocco-bound reporters' score book.

SECRETARY RUSK INVESTIGATING.

Played-Out Horses Slaughtered and Shipped to Europe as Beef.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Hon. J. M. Rusk, Secretary of Agriculture, arrived from Washington Sunday night and spent most of yesterday in the city, returning to the capital last night. Secretary Rusk heard recently that there were several concerns in New York engaged in buying up played-out horses and, after fattening them up a bit, slaughtered them and shipped the meat to Europe, where it was sold as beef.

"I do not know how true this is," said he. "I have just started in to have the matter investigated, and have put two special agents on the case. France is the only country that affords a market for horse flesh. But if horse flesh is being shipped to other European countries and sold as beef, it would probably have the effect of injuring the sale of our beef in European markets. If such a thing is being done, it is the duty of the Agricultural Department to discover and put a stop to it. The department has completed arrangements for the complete inspection of beef, both at the slaughter houses and on the hoof. The quarantine against American cattle in England is only nominal. Cattle shipped to England are properly inspected and tagged, so that there is no longer a necessity for a long quarantine. The inspection of pork is not yet in force. I am now arranging for a trip to Chicago and Kansas City to inaugurate a proper inspection. In the next thirty days I hope to have everything ready to conduct microscopic inspection of pork so as to detect trichinosis. This is a big job, for these inspections will require a large force so as to insure that all pork exported will be free from any trace of trichinæ. As France and Germany allege that our pork is diseased, they try to keep it out, but this excuse will not hold good much longer. There is more trichinosis in German pork than in ours. Besides, the Germans eat their pork nearly raw and of course they suffer considerably from trichinosis."

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Party of Diplomats to Visit Chicago This Week.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—A party of diplomats whose reports to their several governments will have no little influence on the success of the World's Fair will leave for Chicago on Thursday of this week. The party will consist of the French Minister, M. Roustan; the Spanish Minister, Mr. Guanes; the Chinese Minister, Mr. Yin, and the representatives of several of the South American republics. It is desired that the British Minister, Sir Julian Pauncefote, should be one of the party, and he no doubt will be if he is not detained by the Behring Sea complications. It is not improbable that the Swiss and Belgian Ministers may also be included among the number. The trip will be made under the auspices of the State Department. The diplomats will go West in a special car and return via New York and Niagara Falls. One of the officials of the department will accompany them and personally look after their comfort. Their purpose in visiting Chicago will be to judge for themselves of the scope of the fair and to see what arrangements have been made for the exhibits of their several countries. They will be received in Chicago by the members of the National Commission and the local directory, by whom they will be entertained, and through whom the desired information will be obtained.

Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. It only goes to prove what's been said: incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Other so-called remedies may palliate for a time; this cures for all time. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it conquers the worst cases. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell or hearing, watering or weak eyes, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are.

FOR THE ONLY M'NICHOLS

AND OUR OWN HOMES.

They tell of wars in other lands,
Say Servia began it,
And laborers here obey commands
And strikes embroil our planet,
Bold Parnell keeps his power as yet,
And Sullivan his factions,
America will never let
The Old World beat her actions.

But while the busy people roam,
And Emperors pass their fiat,
The wise ones seek to make a home,
To live in peace and quiet.
Let money rest in stony vaults,
With guardians strict about it,
'Twill be the honest man's own fault
If he can't do without it.

Right here in town there is a chance
For all who strive for duty,
To buy with not a cent advance,
For credit things of beauty.
McNichols views the world at large,
Its pleasures, follies, vices,
Sells on—with never extra charge,
Whatever other's prices.

His furniture is massive—fine;
His curtains, carpets—glorious.
His is the best outfitting line,
And always he's victorious.
Maid, wife or widow here can buy,
Or bachelor—they're all meant.

ON 'CHANGE.

Grain and Flour.

Wheat—A wavering market this morning was followed by the development of a good hard spot upon which there was an advance. It was reported via Chicago, that the French Senate had passed the reduced import duty, to go into effect at once, but this was offset by the increased amount in ocean passage of 1,992,000 bu—it decreased 2,280,000 bu one year ago—by dull English cables and Liverpool ½d lower and clearing weather in the West. The opening was firm, and July sold up ⅛@⅛c higher, but soon fell off ⅛c, and then rallied, growing stronger and stronger the higher it went. New York advanced stiffly with foreigners said to be buying freely there, that market also reporting export purchases. Large freight charters from Chicago and Duluth had a bullish effect, though the seaboard clearances of 6,000 pkgs flour and 10,000 bu wheat were the smallest seen for some time. There were also reports from the West of too much rain having damaged the crop. On the rally there was 1½c gain in price, followed by an unsettled period, lower cables from abroad—⅛d in Liverpool, ⅛@¼m in Berlin and 30@40c in Paris, but Antwerp and London unchanged—at one time knocking the market down ⅛c. Fears of further rain, as the sky clouded over again and the strong appearance of New York, held sellers off for a while. Late the whole market turned weak and eased off on declines elsewhere. The close saw July ⅛@⅛c higher, Aug. ⅛c up and Dec. 1-16c off, as compared with yesterday's close. July opened at 94c and sold to 93⅞c to 94⅛c to 94⅛c, ranged between 94⅛c and 94⅛c to 94⅛c, to 94⅛c to 94⅛c to 94⅛c and at close 94⅛c bid. Aug. opened at 92⅜c and sold to 92⅛c to 93⅛c to 92⅝c to 93c to 92⅝c and at close 92⅝c bid. Dec. opened at 95⅞c and sold to 96⅛c to 96c to 96⅛c to 95⅞c and at close 95⅞@96c bid. June sold at 97½c and Sept. at 93c.
SPOT GRADES—No. 2 red started in steady at 98⅛c, and taken by a speculative buyer at that, advanced to 99c, but later fell back to 98⅛c. There was a small order demand, and local millers bought fairly, and one round lot for shipment. Sales: No. 2 red—1 car in St. L., 2 this side, 9 in C. and 1 car and 15,000 bu regular at 98⅛c, 1 car in C. at 98⅛c, 1 in St. L. at 98⅛c, 4 in St. L. or C. at 99c. No. 2 hard winter—2 cars in St. L. at 91½c. No. 3 red—94c bid St. L.
SAMPLES—The light offerings sold readily to the local millers, who were the only buyers. Sales: Special bin—1 car No. 3 hard winter at 88c, 1 No. 3 soft spring at 89c, 1 No. 2 hard do at 90c, 2 No. 4 winter at 91c, 1 No. 2 hard winter at 91½c, 1 No. 3 red at 96c. Track this side—1 car No. 3 spring at 90c. East track—1 car rejected winter at 89c, 1 No. 2 red at 99½c. Sacks—21 cheety at 85c; 29 at 93c, 227 at $1.00, 870 p. t.
Corn—Small receipts and estimates that they will continue so for some time. Some unfavorable reports on the crop, coming mainly from Nebraska and Iowa, where the stand was said to be poor and backward, and the strength in wheat and in foreign markets, Liverpool up another penny, all lent a strong tone to this market. This firmness was displayed nearly all the session, but right late Chicago broke off sharply and was followed by the local market and the close here was ⅛c above yesterday.
July opened ⅛c up, at 56⅛c, and sold to 56⅞c, to 56⅛c, to 56⅛c, to 57⅛c, to 56⅛c, to 56⅛c, to 55⅞c at close. June offered at 56c, bid 55c. Aug. at 56⅛c and 55⅛c; for Sept. 54⅝c bid early and later sold at 54⅝c. July No 2 white offered at 63c, bid 62⅛c.
SPOT GRADES—Were higher, though the demand was not large, most of the No. 2 selling to speculative buyers on call, but afterwards a barge load was taken for export at 56c, though later sales of car lots were at 55⅛c. Grades of white did not hold up in price, either, No. 2 selling late at 62c E. and 92⅛c this side and No. 3 at 60c and 61c respectively. Sales: No. 2—1 car in M., 3 E. side and 5 in St. L. at 56⅛c, 1 in Cdit, 2 in C. and 3 in St. L. at 56⅛c, 6 cars and 2,500 bu regular at 56c, 4 cars do at 55⅛c. No. 3—1 car regular and ½ car in C. at 53⅛c, 1 in C. and 1 in St. L. at 53⅛c. No. 4 white offered at 50c, bid 48c.
SAMPLES—Offerings still small and market firm. Sales: 2 cars mixed tk this side at 54c. Sacked lots on orders, 64@66c.
Oats—The future market was dull and rather weak, notwithstanding the strength in corn and unfavorable crop reports. July sold at 39⅞@40c to 40c and latter asked at close. Aug. sold at 34⅛c. Sept. offered at 34⅛c, bid 34c.
SPOT GRADES—Higher. A car No. 2 regular sold at 46c and that bid for more, and for No. 3 regular 45c bid.
SAMPLES—The light offerings met a good demand at ⅛@1c higher all round. Sales: Special bin—4 cars No. 3 at 45c, 2 do and 1 No. 3 color at 45⅛c, 2 No. 2 at 46c, 2 No. 3 white and 1 No. 2 at 46⅛c, 1 do and 1 No. 2 color at 47c, 1 No. 2 white at 48c, 1 do at 48⅛c. Sacked lots on orders, 52@54c.
Rye—On call No. 2 offered regular at 76c bid 74c and for No. 2 regular 78c bid. Afterwards a car No. 2 in C. sold at 80c, but No. 3 then offered at 74c and could not be sold.

Commercial Notes.

Clearing weather in the West.
Weather in England unsettled but seasonable.
In France the weather reported cold and wet.
Foreigners were free buyers of wheat in New York.
It is estimated the English visible of wheat increased 38,000 bu last week.
Charters of 550,000 bu wheat from Chicago and 300,000 from Detroit were reported.
Weather clearing; 79 deg. at 12 o'clock. Local forecast—Fair; slightly warmer.
An alleged official statement is that the Russian wheat crop is below an average.
The amount of wheat on ocean passage has increased 7,000,000 bu in past three weeks, when it decreased 1,000,000 bu for same period last year.
Exports last week from seven Atlantic ports were 4,425 bbls pork, 7,882,955 lbs. bacon and hams, 5,054,503 lbs lard, 1,450,130 bu. wheat, 590,204 bu. corn and 139,939 bbls flour.
The Northwestern stock of wheat holds out in a marvelous way. Last week there was a decrease of only 197,505 bu, leaving a total of 13,214,966 bu in wheat in three States, against 14,774,043 a year ago.
Christopner & Smith, Kansas City, wired MacGinnitie: "Weather clear. Reports of damage to wheat sent out from here entirely without foundation. We have reports from all parts of Kansas which promise most promising yield and better than 1878."
Chicago had a cable that the French Senate had passed the bill reducing the import duty on grain to 3 francs, the same to go into effect immediately. This must have been exclusive news, as nowhere else was this cable received.
The "Mark Lane Express," in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: "There is a moderate supply of English wheats, the average quotations being 40s 5d. Foreign wheats are depressed, and generally 6d lower. Heavy shipments are on passage, estimated at 3,000,000 quarters, and this fact keeps the market weak. California prompt shipment is quoted at 44s 6d. New American winter is speculated on at 40s for Aug. Beans and barley have declined 6d, maize 9d and oats 9d. At to-day's market English wheats were dull at 6d decline. Foreign reds were also 6d lower, while prices of whites were maintained. Flour declined 6d. Barley was rather firmer. In maize both flat and round were quoted 6d better. Oats declined 3d, while linseed was 3d dearer. Beans and peas were stationary."

Chicago Market Letter.

By private wire to J. P. Grier:
CHICAGO, June 9.—Wheat opened with considerable pressure to sell. The first transactions were about 98c for July. Some fine covering by shorts turned the market. This, with advices of heavy purchases in New York for foreign account, caused the early sellers to become buyers, and the market advanced to 98⅝c. Realizing by holders gave us a decline, and the market closes at 98⅛c. The foreign cables are all dull and lower, owing to increasing supplies and fine weather. Our own crop advances are all that could be looked for, but until we are into harvest, we do not expect much, if any, decline. The demand for shipment East continues and all cash offerings are absorbed at 2c to 3c over July. The Government report due to-morrow it is expected will show a greatly increased acreage and some estimate of what our total yield will be. We do not look for it to be as high in condition as last month. Corn opened at 59⅛c for July, with a great deal of excitement and sold up to 59⅝c. The closing price is 58⅛c. Until receipts increase it will be difficult to establish much decline. Oats fairly active. July closed at 43⅞c. Hog products weak at a decline of 20c on pork and 7c on lard and ribs. The liquidation has been heavy.
F. G. LOGAN & CO.

Special to J

CHICAGO, June 9.—Wheat—There was an increase of 1,992,000 bu in amount of wheat on passage, cables were lower, the weather fine, the crop reports favorable. A crowd at New York presumably largely short here was inclined, however, to cover. Its purchases, aggregating possibly 750,000 bu, advanced prices fractionally and closed them somewhat over Monday. The New Yorkers were influenced probably by news which was on hand late Monday relating to large charters here over 400,000 bu and to the passage by the French Senate of the bill reducing wheat duties. Unquestionably, too, shorts have been moved somewhat by to-morrow's Government report, concerning which there is some uncertainty. There has been within three weeks an increase in the amount of wheat on passage of 7,000,000, and there is now afloat destined for Europe the enormous aggregate of 44,500,000 bu. Corn bulls were elated at moderate car lots (462) and at small estimates for Wednesday under the manipulation which has been exerted here whenever opportunity offered prices were advanced ⅛c. Then followed quick reaction, receivers to-day report loading in the country much larger, the result unquestionably of better weather. One of the largest receivers was to-day the best sellers of futures. Samples were strong, but did not clear at top. Our market will sell off sharply with any prospect of increasing receipts. The movement of oats is relatively freer than that of corn to-day. Cars 361, Wednesday estimate 156. The rains too are unquestionably proving most beneficial. Foreigners are getting very weak on provisions. It has been their selling which during past few days has brought about the decline. Englishmen are reported loaded with lard and meats, with trade at home greatly depressed. Pork to-day declined 15c, lard and ribs 7½@10c, packers predicting such a decline in product as will force a large consumption.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—After the close of the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon a cablegram was received saying that the French Senate had amended the bill of the Lower House reducing the tariff on wheat 10 francs, by providing that it should go into effect at once, instead of on Aug. 1, and that it only required the approval of the Lower House to make it operative. On the strength of this the price of calls was put up on the curb. Cables this morning, however, quoted wheat ⅛d lower at Liverpool. July wheat opened here at 98⅛c, against 98c at the close yesterday, and quickly sold up to 97⅛c. Some good buying by New Yorkers followed and the price rallied to 98⅛c. At 11 o'clock it stood at 98⅛c. Liverpool advices quoted corn ⅛d higher and there was corresponding strength here. July started in at 59⅛c against 59c, the closing figure yesterday. There was free selling, however, at the advance and the price fell away to 59c. A reaction then set in in sympathy with wheat and a rally to 59⅛c followed. At 11 o'clock it stood at 59⅛c. Provisions were dull and weak at the start and continued dull, so that a little buying on the call caused a reaction to about outside figures. Sept. pork opened at $10.82½, an advance of 2½c over night, sold off to $10.75 and reacted on the call to $10.80.

RAGING FIERCELY.

The Forest Fires in New Brunswick—Heavy Loss.

ST. JOHN, New Brunswick, June 9.—Moffat's mill, Murray's lumber mill and James Gillies' dwelling at the head of Tidewater, Restigouche County, were totally destroyed by fire yesterday. Heavy forest fires are raging in the woods opposite Campbellton, on the north shore. The whole Gaspe Peninsula, over 100 miles in extent, is threatened and the village of Nouville is in danger. People are fighting fires in various directions, and as extreme drought prevails, everything in the path of the flames burns like tinder. Farmers have lost crops, fences and outbuildings without number. Nothing but rain will prevent a general disaster. The loss already has been very great. Last night fire appeared in the woods skirting the city, and fences had to be torn down to prevent its onward march. Fires are sweeping away the woods between Penobsquis and Aragans and are destroying a great deal of valuable timber.

CHANGE IN BANK OFFICIALS.

J. B. C. Lucas Succeeds Joseph O'Neil as President of the Citizens' Bank.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Citizens' Savings Bank this morning the resignation of Hon. Joseph O'Neil was accepted and Mr. J. B. C. Lucas was elected to fill the vacancy. This is a move which has been contemplated some time by the managers of the bank, and the election will no doubt cause material changes in the affairs of the institution. The bank was established in 1869 and Mr. Joseph O'Neil was made its President, having served for years prior to that as President of the Central Savings Bank. He continued as President until to-day and retires to seek rest and quiet and relieve himself of the responsibilities of the bank, though he may continue as a director. He has disposed of the greater part of his stock to the new president, Mr. Lucas, and Mr. A. H. Handlan of M. M. Buck & Co. Mr. Lucas has been a director of the American Exchange Bank for twenty-five years, and is Vice-President of the Calvary Cemetery Association. He is a son of the late J. B. C. Lucas, a descendant of one of the founders of this city, and is worth over $1,000,000 in his own right. Mr. Handlan has been a resident of this city thirty-five years, and is a very successful and wealthy business man. He is also president of the Marquette Club. The present Board of Directors of the Citizens' Bank is composed of Messrs. R. W. Powell, F. C. Murphy, William Dooley, S. W. McAllister, W. J. Tracy and the former president, Mr. O'Neil. The directors would not state what the future plans of the new management would be, but it is rumored that the capital stock will be increased to $500,000 and a new location found in the business center for the bank.

Wall Street.

NEW YORK, June 9.—11 a. m.—Stock this morning was dull and almost featureless, for while considerable animation was shown in St. Paul, Union Pacific and Atchison, all the interest in the dealings was concentrated in the industrials, the remainder being practically neglected. The opening figures in the railroad stocks were generally firm, ⅛ to ⅛ per cent lower than last evening's prices, and a drooping tendency was apparent, although the fluctuations of the hour were scarcely perceptible with the industrials on the other hand showed marked strength on comparatively active trading, and Sugar at 89 was up 1⅛ per cent, and Chicago Gas at 55⅛ was up ⅛ per cent. Chicago Gas retired a shade from its best figure, but prices were well maintained and a firmer tone prevailed in the general list toward the end of the hour, the market at 11 o'clock being dull but steady at insignificant changes from the opening prices.
Noon—Money easy 3@3⅛ per cent. In the stock market after 11 o'clock there was further rise in Sugar, which rose to 89⅛ before the upward movement came to an end. A reaction followed which adversely affected the rest of the market, and everything gave way though there was little change except in Louisville, which at its lowest showed a loss of 1 per cent from its opening price. The market was a little more active on the decline, but at 12 o'clock it was still dull and rather heavy generally at small fractions below the opening figures.
3 p. m.—Money easy, last loan and closing offering at 3 per cent. Bar silver, 97⅛.
The declaration of the dividends on the sugar stocks were followed after 12 o'clock by a further advance in the common, but this improvement was not held and it reacted below 89. No response was made to this advance in rest of the market and the coal stocks for the time being displayed marked weakness, Lackawanna declining to 134⅛ and Jersey Central to 108, losses of 1⅛ and 1⅛ per cent, respectively, from their last evening's prices. The others generally reached the lowest prices of the day, but the movement as usual was scarcely perceptible. The market lapsed into the most extreme dullness, the only exception being the two industrials, and while sugar declined slightly, Chicago Gas was strong and again crossed 55. No perceptible movement or even tendency was to be discerned in the railroad list, and the market finally closed dull and barely steady at small fractions under first prices

THE BAGGAGE MASTER'S REWARD.

A Wealthy Lady Whose Life He Saved Remembers Him Kindly.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 9.—Clarence J. Hunt was until within a few weeks ago a baggage master on the Old Colony Railway, running between Boston and Newport. To-day he is the owner of a prosperous little business in Methuen, and is, besides, agent for the owner of a great amount of real estate in that town. This change is due to the fact that a year ago he saved a lady from being crushed under the wheels of his train. The lady, who is now Mrs. Searle of New York, was formerly the wife of the late Mark Hopkins, one of the bonanza kings of California. Her present husband, Mr. Searle, made it his business to become acquainted with Hunt, and finding him to be possessed of a first-rate character and also of good business ability, provided for his future in the manner above indicated.

THE CAMBRIDGE LIQUOR RAIDS.

Policemen Stop and Search a Funeral Procession for Liquor.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 9.—The latest of the Cambridge liquor raids, supplementing those of last week on the Harvard society houses, is the most peculiar of all. The funeral of a Mrs. Cowen of Hingham took place yesterday afternoon in Cambridgeport. The procession started from the house with a large number of mourners in the carriages. It had not gone far when it was stopped by policemen, who searched the carriages for liquor, which they assumed to be an accompaniment of an Irish-American funeral. The only thing they got was the execration of the people in the carriages.

A Great Millinery Sale.

The ladies were out yesterday; the rush to get a glimpse of the fashionable array of trimmed and untrimmed hats and flowers at slaughter prices at A. H. Fuch's Fashionable Emporium, 700 and 702 North Broadway, was tremendous. A. H. Fuchs is to-day the most popular man in St. Louis with the ladies. This is practically accounted for by the enormous cut in prices on fashionable millinery; $10 Parisian trimmed hats were marked down to $2; flowers that cost $1.80 in Paris marked down to 45 cents. Announcements of this great cut in prices appeared in the Sunday papers, and the result was phenomenal. The energy of thirty experienced salesladies was taxed to its utmost to supply the demand. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of the most fashionable millinery ever shown in St. Louis was marked down 75 per cent below cost or value. This morning was a repetition on a smaller scale; ladies called to get their parcels, as owing to the unexpected rush the delivery was inadequate. Mr. Fuchs realizing that the millinery season was about over adopted this method to dispose of his tremendous stock of fashionable goods, which, no doubt, met with the hearty approval of the ladies who longed and sighed for the correct, stylish and parisian trimmed hat at reduced prices. This is surely a cataclysm in fashionable millinery such as never witnessed before.

NOT PLEASED WITH AMERICA.

A Colony of Twenty-Five Poles Returning to Their Native Land.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—A colony of about twenty-five Poles left last evening for New York, en route to the land of their nativity. One of the men remarked that the colony was returning to Poland to remain permanently, not being pleased with America, having been induced to leave the fatherland by flattering reports sent out of a country full of gold mines, lucrative positions, free homes, etc. They did not find the Garden of Eden pictured in their minds and longed for the old home and its easy, quiet mode of life.

To the Traveling Public.

You will find the most complete assortment of trunks and traveling bags, such as dress, steamer and Saratoga trunks, grain, leather, alligator and sealskin bags, and satchels of all descriptions, at lowest prices at Herket & Meisel's, 420 North Sixth street.

Still Sleeping.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 9.—John Vanderhover, the carmaker who went to sleep in the foundry at the West Milwaukee shops last Thursday, still sleeps. He slept almost constantly from the time he reached home Thursday until last evening, when he roused a little, but dropped off again, and while able to sit in a rocking chair, is unable to make coherent replies to questions put in the simplest language.

Trunks and Traveling Goods.

The largest and best assortment of Steamer, Dress, Saratoga and Gents' Trunks of every description, and a full line of Seal, Alligator and Grain Leather Bags and Satchels, can be had at prices to suit the times from the old reliable house of P. C. Murphy, Third and St. Charles streets.

Cable Accident.

A buggy belonging to John Murray was damaged to the amount of $25 in a collision with a People's line cable car at Jefferson and Lafayette avenues yesterday afternoon. Murray was thrown to the street, but escaped serious injury.

SUMMER OPERA AT UHRIG'S CAVE AND SCHNAIDER'S GARDEN.

The Cave Opened With an Admirable Performance of "Said Pasha"—"Erminie" Follows the "Beggar Student" at Schnaider's—Amusement News.

The opening performance of the Spencer Opera Co. at Uhrig's Cave last evening drew a surprisingly fine audience, considering the weather. The seats under the canvass were nearly all filled.

Those who attended were amply repaid for their courage by one of the most enjoyable and artistic performances of light opera which have been given here during the summer seasons. No allowances were needed for any point in the production. The company compares favorably with the best regular light opera organizations and is exceptionally strong vocally and histrionically and the performance was smooth, artistic, thoroughly pleasing. That the audience was captivated by it was evident from the enthusiastic applause which was given the singers and the frequent encores demanded. "Said Pasha," which was the bill for the opening, is a lively, pleasing opera with a melodious score, the full merit of which was developed by the company. The individual work of the members of the cast for the most part deserves high commendation. The weakest vocal point was the tenor, Mr. Rising, whose voice was not always true, but he took the part of Terano with pleasing grace and dash. Addie Cora Reed as Alti was as pleasing in appearance as she was admirable in acting and singing. She won the audience at once. The part of Serena was cleverly taken by Agnes Sherwood. Miss Mabela Baker admirably filled the role of Balah Sojah in every respect. Geo. H. Broderick's fine basso was heard to advantage in the part of Said Pasha, which he acted acceptably, and Stuart Harold proved that he has an excellent barytone voice of very pleasant and musical quality and used it with artistic skill as Hassen Bey. The Rajah was acceptably taken by Sinclair Nash, while the comedy parts were amusingly and capably filled by Jerome Sykes as Hoaxd and Edwin Gavin as Mockey. The minor parts were satisfactorily handled and the chorus and orchestra must be credited with excellent work.

The costumes were handsome and the stage setting good, while the appearance of the stage has been improved by electric lighting throughout, which has been substituted for gas. "Said Pasha" is undoubtedly booked for success.

"ERMINIE" AT SCHNAIDER'S.

A change of bill was made at Schnaider's Garden last night, "Erminie" taking the place of "The Beggar Student," with which the season opened at that place. Owing to the threatening weather there was not a large audience present. In "Erminie" the company at the Garden is somewhat stronger than in the opera selected for the first week of summer, and with more favorable weather its drawing powers will doubtless be satisfactorily shown. Douglas Flint and George Lauri as Ravennes and Cadeau are, of course, principally responsible for the way in which the production "caught on" last night, and did excellent comedy work. Miss Tellula Evans as Erminie was fairly good, but lacked the necessary animation. Martin Pache as Eugene was again hampered by his difficulty with the English language, but scored the most pronounced hit of the evening in his solo in the second act. Marietta Nash was in her element as the maid, Javotte, and Jennie Reiffarth made a strong part of the Princess de Grampeneur. Cecil Froom took the character of the Marquis di Ponvent rather too seriously, while W. A. Lafferty as the Vicomte de Brisac was acceptable in the few lines falling to that part. A. W. Maflin as Simon did good work in his scenes with Javotte and the minor characters were acceptably cast. The chorus was noticeably better than in the "Beggar Student." The performance as a whole was satisfactory and shows the company to good advantage.

The musicale and lecture was first announced for Temple Israel, but has been changed to Entertainment Hall at the solicitation of Mr. Robyn's friends and of many citizens, who desire to hear a liberal Hebrew discourse on one of the greatest divines of the Catholic Church.

De Wolf Hopper's Divorce Suit.

From the New York Sun.

There was excitement on the Rialto yesterday, which took the form of positive affirmation, and then of positive denial, that De Wolf Hopper had been made defendant in a suit for absolute divorce. Mrs. Hopper is the comedian's second wife, his first having procured a divorce from him about 1886.

The co-respondent in the present case is Delia Fox, who is at present chief soubrette in Hopper's opera, "Wang," at the Broadway. Mrs. Hopper is said to have objected to her husband's attentions to his leading actress, which had been widely commented upon by theatrical people here and on the road. The movement toward divorce was instituted several weeks ago.

Yesterday Hopper's friends were very reticent. Most of them admitted that there had been trouble, but one who is very close to Hopper declared that a reconciliation had been affected.

Hopper's present wife was Miss Carrie Moshier, who was in the chorus of the McCaull opera troupe when she met and married the comedian.

A Clever St. Louis Actress.

Mr. Smythe is a St. Louisan and appreciates St. Louis talent.

ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN'S SERMON.

The Upholders of the Single Tax Philosophy Not Disturbed by It.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Archbishop Corrigan's sermon on Sunday on that part of Pope Leo's encyclical which referred to the right of private ownership in property excited much comment yesterday. If the Archbishop's interpretation of the Pope's letter is the correct one, the question is, indeed, an interesting one, especially to such Catholics as may be exponents and followers of Henry George's single tax theory. The Archbishop seems to be very decided in his opinion regarding the relationship existing between the members of the Catholic Church, the Pope and the outside world. The doctrines of the encyclical are infallible to the true Catholic, because they are the utterance of the Pope, and according to the Archbishop, those who deny the right of private ownership in land, which in his interpretation is clearly affirmed by the encyclical, must be anti-Papists and anti-Catholics. The upholders of the single tax philosophy, however, do not seem to fear the Pope's attack on them in his encyclical. Henry George last evening spoke very freely on the Pope's statements and Archbishop Corrigan's rendering of them.

A HORRIBLE JOKE.

Two Bicyclists Trick a Central New Jersey Engineer.

NEW YORK, June 9.—Michael Mynihan, one of the oldest engineers on the Central New Jersey Railway, was the victim of a joke on Saturday night which shattered his nerves so badly that his hair turned white. Mynihan was at the throttle of a "royal blue flyer" and going at the rate of a mile a minute when, beyond Bound Brook, two red lights were flashed before him on the track, just as he was rounding a curve. The signals were less than 100 yards away, and Mynihan turned on the air-brakes and prepared to leap from his engine to escape the death he anticipated. As the engine sped by the lights, Mynihan heard a mocking laugh and discerned in the dim light of the lanterns two bicyclists, who mounted their wheels and rode away. The horrible joke completely prostrated the engineer. Detectives are searching for the bicyclists for violation of a State law in signaling a train without cause.

CARBON TRUST FORMED.

REPORTED CONSOLIDATION OF THE ELECTRIC LIGHT CARBON COMPANIES.

Manager Arnold Denies That the Thomson-Houston Co. Is in It—The Fidelity Works Now Controlled by the National—The Parker-Russell Co.'s Position.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 9.—A St. Louis carbon candle manufactory in a circular letter informs its customers that it has reason to believe that a combination of electric carbon manufacturers has been formed. Prof. Barratt, City Electrician and Chief of the Electrical Bureau of the World's Fair, when asked about the matter said: "Although I do not personally know that such a combination has been made, the National Co. at Cleveland, I think, is the principal concern of the alleged trust. The ones outside are the Parker-Russell Co. of St. Louis, the Excelsior, Solar and a new manufactory, the Minimum of Buffalo. Prices have not been affected to my knowledge yet, but, of course, when smaller concerns are frozen out it is an easy matter to raise rates."

The trust, it is said, is composed of the National Carbon Co. of Cleveland, which recently bought the Bolton Works after the assignment; the Standard, Brush and Thomson-Houston companies, also the Cleveland, and the Fidelity Carbon Manufacturing Co. of St. Louis. It is believed also that the Faraday Carbon Co. is in the combine.

WHAT THEY SAY HERE.

The St. Louis Carbon Manufacturers on the Reported Combine.

Mr W. L. Arnold, the local manager of the Thomson-Houston Co., smiled as he read the above telegram, and said that he didn't believe a word of it. He had heard rumors of a combine for several months, but the talk was all wind. He had been selling carbons a year or more at $9.50 per 1,000, and would take all the orders he could get the balance of the year at the same rates. No, there was no increase in prices and would be none so far as he had been advised. Next to the Standard Co., he considered the Thomson-Houston the largest carbon manufacturing concern in the world, and the Standard, as he understood it, controlled the Brush and the National. They all had their headquarters in the same city, Cleveland, and the combine, if there was one, might include them, but it did not the Thomson-Houston, whose works were at Fremont, O. He hadn't heard of either of these companies buying out any St. Louis carbon plant, except that he read a few months ago of the National's having bought an option on the Parker-Russell Works.

THINK A COMBINE HAS BEEN FORMED.

The telegram was shown to Mr. Russell of the Parker-Russell Mining & Manufacturing Co. and that gentleman also smiled. He had also heard of this proposed combine and he thought there was something in it. He had heard the story just about as stated in the telegram. No, his company had never been approached to join the combine. They had made a low rate on carbon recently to draw out the companies said to be in the combine, but had heard nothing from them. Several years ago an effort was made to form a trust and they were asked to go into it and refused, but agreed to sell the trust their product. This combine lasted only about sixty days and no new trust had been formed with the exception of the one referred to in the telegram. No changes had been made among the carbon companies of St. Louis since Charley Heisler sold out to an Eastern concern except a rumored transfer of the Fidelity Co.'s plant to the National Co. He had heard that the National had bought out the Fidelity two or three months ago, but didn't know how true it was.

THE FIDELITY SOLD OUT.

The officers of the Fidelity Co., all reside in Cleveland, O., but a gentleman at the works on De Kalb street, who seemed to be thoroughly posted on the subject, said that he had heard nothing official of the reported combine and didn't think there was any truth in the rumors, which had been common talk for some time among carbon men. Yes, it was true that the Fidelity Co. had been brought out by the National Co. of Cleveland, or rather, Mr. W. H. Lawrence, who held a controlling interest in the National Co., had bought a controlling interest in the St. Louis plant. He wouldn't like to say that there was no likelihood of a combine, as he knew nothing about it, but was pretty sure that none had been formed as yet.

None of the gentlemen interviewed knew anything of the circular letter spoken of in the telegram.
